Supervisors give 'go-ahead' to gas-ration ordinance

Gasoline rationing is apparently coming to Los Angeles County and possibly to the rest of the Southland.

The county Board of Supervisors called for an ordinance today that would restrict purchase of gasoline to Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays for cars whose licenses end in odd numbers, and Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays for even numbers.

Since the county may not be able to make its regulation stick in the cities, the supervisors have appealed to the Southern California Association of Governments for support.

SCAG has scheduled a special meeting for noon to consider the matter.

The plan is similar to one passed by Oregon last month, and calls for a stiff fine against gas station operators who violate the ordinance.

Supervisor James Hayes, who brought the plan before the board, said the ordinance will be on the agenda at next Thursday's meeting. He said that while he could not guarantee passage, "it looked good."

Meanwhile, supervisors in San Bernardino county went after gas station operators who reportedly overcharge motorists in times of shortage.

The San Bernardino board adopted an urgency ordinance requiring gas stations to clearly post the price at which they have available gasoline

The ordinance becomes effective in two weeks and applies to all of San Bernardino County's unincorporated areas.

According to the ordinance, the inability of the motoring public to determine the price of gasoline until the motorists are at the pump has resulted in aggravation and threats of violence. The supervisors claim the ordinance is necessary for the safety of both the buyers and the sellers.

The new law stipulates the price per gallon, including all taxes, must be visible from the street and that no gasoline may be advertised which is not currently available.

The Los Angeles rationing plan, if it obtains the blessing of SCAG, may go regional.

It not only calls for rationing by plates, but aims at those who just want to "top off" the gas in their tanks. To prevent "topping off," motorists would have to buy at least five gallons of gasoline.

To put teeth into the proposal, it calls for a fine of up to $500 for infractions.

The plan is one which was approved by the County Energy Commission Wednesday.

It bans all gasoline sales on Sundays, except for designated emergency stations spaced five miles apart and kept open for police cars, ambulances and public safety vehicles. Stranded motorists would be able to buy one gallon of gas from the emergency stations.

Because the supervisors have no control over the cities, Hayes said there would be a concentrated appeal to them to follow the lead of the county. If this does not work, Hayes said the board would appeal to Gov. Ronald Reagan to enforce the rationing plan in the incorporated areas.

ANYTHING TO SAVE FUEL

The energy crisis has led some to try many things to conserve fuel. Jacob Mueller of Mar Vista has rigged up a windmill which he says will propel his car once it gets going on a flat surface at 30-35 miles per hour. His theory, however, hasn't been tested. He needs trailer license.

$4 million more in food or we'll break off talks—kidnapers

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (UPI)—The kidnapers of Patricia Hearst today demanded another $4 million in food as a condition of her release, and said if the family does not "comply precisely," they will break off communication. The terrorists also threatened to hold Miss Hearst as a hostage for two members of their group held in San Quentin Prison.

A family spokesman said the latest communique from the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army came in the form of a tape and letter left in a San Francisco telephone booth Wednesday night. The communique was addressed to the Rev. Cecil Williams, who received an earlier communique, and he was alerted to its whereabouts by an anonymous telephone call.

The latest communication also contained a reference by the SLA to the two men being held in San Quentin Prison charged with murder in the assassinatiion of Oakland Schools Supt. Dr. Marcus Foster. The SLA claimed responsibility for that killing.

The 20-minute tape also contained a few words from a woman believed to be Patty Hearst. At the end of the tape she said, "Today is Feb. 19. Today the Shah of Iran executed two men at dawn."

Most of the tape was a man's voice identified as "Cinque," who also spoke on an earlier tape recording received by the Hearsts.

Family members said they were satisfied the tape recording was authentic.

In the tape, the family spokesman said, Cinque said the $2 million already pledged by Miss Hearst's father, newspaper publisher Randolph A. Hearst, "is not enough" as a good will gesture.

Cinque said that if the family does not meet the demands, the SLA will break off communications and keep Miss Hearst hostage according to the terms of the Geneva Convention, and her status will not change until the status has changed for the two SLA members, Joseph Remiro and Russell Little.

The voice of Cinque listed at length assets of the Hearst family and the Hearst Foundation, which is putting up $1.5 million of the $2 million food giveaway program scheduled to begin Friday. Among the assets Cinque listed was an orange grove, a house in La Jolla, Calif. (which the Hearst spokesman said had been sold), membership in a Marysville, Calif., duck club; a listing of stocks the family spokesman said was inaccurate; 24 Greek vases in the Hearst home Cinque said were worth $24,000 each, and a rug collection.

Cinque called the assets the "enormous power and wealth of the Hearst family" and suggested the family was withholding its resources in its offer of the food program to win Patty's release.

The Hearst spokesman said Cinque appeared to be backing away from Patty Hearst's remark on an earlier tape recording that whatever her father did would be sufficient.

On the tape, Cinque also denounced some radical groups that have criticized the SLA, the spokesman said, charging that they are "compromising the revolutionary position" by not supporting the kidnapers' action.

Cinque also said the SLA wants the coalition of six groups named in an earlier letter to act as observers only to monitor the food program and not negotiate for the girl's release.

He also specified food distribution points for the give-away program, saying they should be located in East Palo Alto, East and West Oakland, and San Francisco's Mission District, Chinatown, Western Addition and Hunter's Point. All are low-income sections of the San Francisco Bay Area.

And Cinque said he wants the Western Addition Neighborhood Organization of San Francisco to be added to the coalition.

Admirals told him to steal documents, spy

Yeoman contradicts brass' testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Navy Yeoman Charles Radford says the admirals who ran the Pentagon liaison office at the White House gave him direct instructions to steal documents and spy on Henry Kissinger and Gen. Alexander Haig.

Radford, in a 23-page statement to the Senate Armed Services Committee made public Wednesday, directly contradicted testimony of Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; and of Secretary of State Kissinger, who had dismissed his spying as actions of an "overzealous" enlisted man "trying to make Brownie points" with his superiors.

Radford said he was told to spy in general and to look for specific information on Vietnam and China during four trips abroad with Haig and Kissinger. He was personally congratulated by both his bosses and Moorer's aides after each of the four trips, he said.

He denied ever giving information to anyone outside government. He charged that lax security in offices at the White House and Pentagon gave him access to documents leaked to columnist Jack Anderson and at least seven other people.

Radford's testimony produced immediate demands for a full-fledged probe of the affair from Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, a committee member.

The committee was already moving in that direction. One of the two officers involved, Adm. Robert O. Welander, was scheduled to testify today in closed session. The other—who allegedly initiated the spying— Adm. Rembrandt C. Robinson, was killed in Vietnam in 1971.

Radford said instructions to get unauthorized information for the Pentagon were given him by Robinson a matter of days after he reported for White House duty in September, 1970.

He said Robinson called him in and told him that "I would be seeing things that, in some cases he would not see...and that I should make sure that he saw or knew about what I saw by bringing him a copy."

Robinson "stated that he worked directly for the Chairman (Moorer) and that it was his responsibility to keep the Chairman informed and that I was to help him do this."

A bureaucracy-wise Robinson even told him to be careful of information that was volunteered because "some people would deliberately leak things to him to prove their own points," Radford said.

In December, 1970, he was assigned to travel with Haig as a stenographer on a trip to Vietnam connected with the peace negotiations.

Before he left, Radford said, Robinson called him in and told him he should "keep my eyes open for any and all information that might be useful to the Joint Chiefs of Staff."

Specific subjects included cuts in Vietnam troop strength, any agreements between the White House and President Nguyen Van Thieu, and any notes on Haig's conversations with Cambodian President Lon Nol.

Radford said he collected a considerable batch of documents by rifling the "burn bags" on Haig's plane and copying messages "and any other correspondence...that I came in contact with."

He delivered them on his return and was personally congratulated not only by Robinson but by aides to Moorer, he said.

Radford said he performed similar services on two other trips to Indochina with Haig in March and December, 1971, and Kissinger's secret visit to Peking in July of that year.

Trusty flees fairgrounds in deputy's car; captured

POMONA — A county jail trusty, accused of escaping in a deputy sheriff's private car containing his off-duty revolver here Wednesday, was arrested early today in Los Angeles.

Thomas E. Dowell, 26, a convicted robber from Los Angeles, was seized at Sixth and Union streets in downtown Los Angeles shortly after 2 a.m. Details of the arrest were not available immediately.

Wednesday afternoon, authorities said, Dowell took the car of Deputy Eldon E. Cramer, 40, from the sheriff's driver training school at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds. In the car were Cramer's 2-inch, .38-caliber revolver, his badge and identification papers.

Authorities said Dowell, who was working as a trusty at the school, also took clothing from the lockers of deputies Edgar C. Reed, 37, and Frank S. Woodbury, 43, and credit cards belonging to Woodbury.

Dowell had been left in the office to clean it up, deputies said, when they left to instruct other law enforcement officers in police driving techniques. The thefts were discovered at 2:30 p.m.

Officers said Dowell changed from his jail denims into clothing taken from the lockers and then drove off in Cramer's 1973 Pinto.

Jail authorities said Dowell was serving a one-year jail term as a condition of six years' probation for robbery. He was due to be released in less than a month, they said, but probably will face additional prosecution for the escape.

Revolutionary group makes no demands

Atlanta editor kidnaped by 'fanatics'

REG MURPHY

ATLANTA (UPI) — John R. "Reg" Murphy, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, apparently was kidnaped Wednesday night by a political revolutionary group that then lapsed into silence without making any demands.

More than 15 hours after the abduction authorities said there had been no word from the kidnapers and that they could suggest no motive for the act, although the Constitution recently ran an editorial saying the abduction of Patricia Hearst was the work of a "fanatic and criminal group."

Murphy, 40-year-old father of two teen-age daughters, was last seen about 7:30 p.m. Wednesday when he left his home to keep an appointment with a man who claimed he wanted to discuss a news story.

At 9:15 p.m., one hour and 45 minutes after Murphy disappeared, the Constitution received a phone call from a man who identified himself as a colonel in the "Revolutionary Army." The colonel said the army had taken Murphy captive and that the Constitution, the state's largest newspaper, would hear further from the group.

In quick succession the abductors also placed calls to television station WAGA and Murphy's wife, Virginia. The caller told WAGA, "We have Reg Murphy, editor of the Constitution, and don't bother to call the FBI. It won't help." The FBI immediately swung into action, however, and reportedly was looking for a green Ford Torino, in which they apparently believe Murphy was abducted.

William Fields, executive editor of the Constitution, said he knew nothing about the "Revolutionary Army." Civil rights groups in Atlanta also said they had never heard of such an organization.

The editorial on the Hearst kidnaping that appeared last Saturday in the Constitution said the abduction of Patricia Hearst "is almost a miniature history of the problems of our times. There is a fanatic and criminal radical group, the Sybionese Liberation Army, that apparently wants to overthrow the established order..."

Fields said Murphy had not written that particular editorial, but likely approved it. Asked if he thought that this was what prompted Murphy's kidnaping, Fields replied: "Your guess is as good as mine."

Fields said, however, that Murphy was "a very active person and a very involved person, he would be in the forefront in the public's mind and the logical subject for something like this."

The Constitution, a morning newspaper, did not print anything about the Murphy abduction today, and when asked about this, Fields said the newspaper was just awaiting further word.

Asked what word he had for the kidnapers, Fields replied: "We would simply like to hear from them, to learn what they want. We would certainly do anything we could to get Reg back. We want him back as soon as possible and unharmed."

Fields was also asked whether a ransom demand would be met. "We have had no indication of what might be required," he replied. "We have not been asked to meet any ransom demand, and there has been no reason to discuss it because we have had no contact."

Fields also said that Murphy was not rich —"he's a newspaper man."

The Constitution is owned by the Cox chain, one of the major newspaper groups in the country.

Sahara landing?

Shift in wind

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Adventurer Thomas L. Gatch, attempting the world's first manned transatlantic balloon flight, sailed toward an expected landing in the Sahara Desert today, about 1,000 miles north of earlier predictions.

Land trackers had previously expeted Gatch to land in Dakar, Senegal, but later said unpredictable winds blew him toward the Spanish Sahara.

Nation's economy going from bad to worse

By GENE CARLSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rampant inflation and sluggish economic growth at the end of 1973, just revealed in a new government report, sound bad enough. But things have probably gotten worse since then.

In a revised report on the state of the 1973 economy, the Commerce Department said Wednesday that prices between October and December rose at a whopping 8.8 per cent annual rate, a 22-year high, while economic output poked along at a 1.6 per cent pace.

In a similar report a month ago, based on sketchier data, the department put the inflation rate at 7.9 per cent and the growth rate at 1.3 per cent.

The new figures show that inflation was worse at year end than originally thought but production was somewhat better.

However, most government and private economists feel that the situation has deteriorated even further in early 1974, as the full effects of the energy crisis plus shortages of other important raw materials and a lack of productive capacity in key industries make themselves felt across the economy.

President Nixon's economists stop short of predicting a recession. They suggest that growth will probably be near zero and may even be in the minus column in the first quarter of 1974, while inflation isn't likely to slack off until spring at the earliest.

First official estimates of what actually happens won't be available until April when the Commerce Department releases its gross national product (GNP) figures for the January-March quarter.

For the final three months of last year total GNP rose $33 billion to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1,337.5 billion ($1.3 trillion).

The figures would have risen even further had not many citizens decided to scale back their spending for consumer goods and put more of their income into savings accounts.

Personal savings rose by a healthy $16 billion in the fourth quarter, a sign that Americans are increasingly uneasy about their job security and the general economic outlook and want to increase their family nest eggs.

Committee staff concludes:

Could impeach President for non-criminal actions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House impeachment inquiry staff said today it had concluded if the facts warrant, President Nixon could be impeached for noncriminal acts, including abuse of the powers of the Presidency.

In a 150-page report to the 38 members of the House Judiciary Committee, the staff, organized to study possible impeachable offenses, stressed that impeachment was "a grave step for the nation."

"It is to be predicated only upon conditions seriously incompatible with either the constitutional form and principles of our government or the proper performance of the constitutional duties of the presidential office," the report said.

The report said, "The duty of a President to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution to the best of his ability includes the duty not to abuse his powers or transgress their limits, not to violate the rights of citizens, such as those granted by the Bill of Rights and not to act in derogation of power vested elsewhere by the Constitution."

In saying a President could be impached for acts other than criminal offenses, the report cited as impeachable conduct "undermining the integrity of the office, disregard of constitutional duties and oath of office, arrogation of power, abuse of the government process, adverse impact on the system of the government."

"Clearly, these effects can be brought about in ways not anticipated by criminal law," the report said.

The report appeared to hold the President responsible for the conduct of his subordinates, although the staff did not spell out whether it felt he was responsible for acts not specifically authorized by him.

It is not binding on House members. Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.Y., said each member would have to decide for himself what constitutes an impeachable offense when the time comes for a vote.

But the fact that Special Committee Counsel John M. Doar and the committee's Republican counsel, Albert E. Jenner, concurred in the report added to its weight, committee members said. Rodino said it was "solidly approved" by the committee staff.

The report appeared to take a midground between extreme views. One is that a president can be impeached only for criminal offenses. The other is that he can be impeached if enough members of Congress simply don't like the way he is doing his job.

It left the question how to interpret "very serious, very grave." A committee source told UPI earlier this week the definition could include abuse of powers of the presidency.

News briefs

Gromyko views sights of Italy

ORVIETO, Italy (UPI) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko turned tourist Wednesday visiting an Etruscan museum and a Roman Catholic cathedral and seeing a reputedly wonder-working relic put specially on display for him.

Gromyko came to this hilltop town 75 miles north of Rome, took a break for the day between talks with Italian leaders and a scheduled meeting with Pope Paul VI.

During a tour of a 13th century cathedral Gromyko viewed frescoes by Luca Signorelli and other Italian masters and a specially displayed reliquary containing an altar linen. Tradition has it that the linen became miraculously stained with blood when a priest expressed doubts that the bread and wine of the Eucharist were the true body and blood of Christ.

Linda gains legal change of name

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Yes, there really is a Linda Lovelace. At least, as of today.

Linda Borman Traynor, 23, star of the sex film "Deep Throat," won court approval Wednesday for a legal name change to her stage identification—Linda Lovelace. Her attorney told Superior Court Commissioner Harold Boisvert that Miss Lovelace plans to divorce her husband, Charles Traynor, and wanted to adopt her stage name for professional reasons.

Miss Lovelace is awaiting trial in Las Vegas, Nev., on drug possession charges.

Waldheim on tour of Upper Volta

OUAGADOUGOU, Upper Volta (UPI) — U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim arrived Wednesday to visit drought-stricken areas of the country.

He said he will visit Goromgorom, 160 miles northeast of Ouagadougou, a distributing point for international aid and probably will make a worldwide appeal Thursday for assistance to the disaster areas of West Africa.

Woman motorist injured in crash

POMONA — A young woman motorist was injured Wednesday morning in a two-car collision at Towne and Holt avenues.

Pamela J. Depuy, 19, of 13067 Sixth St., Chino, suffered facial cuts and arm and leg injuries in the accident. She was admitted to Pomona Valley Community Hospital for treatment.

The other driver, Raymond J. Wilde, 58, Azusa, was not hurt. Police said he was making a left turn ahead of the woman's small sedan when the collision occurred.

Foreign gas imports cited

FEO warning to states

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Energy Office served notice on states today that any gasoline brought into the United States from foreign suppliers is subject to allocation controls.

To ease its gasoline shortage, Connecticut purchased gasoline overseas and other states also were considering the same action.

In response to Connecticut's action, an FEO spokesman said, "All gasoline is subject to allocation by the Federal Energy Office." New suppliers, including state and local governments or private individuals, must notify the agency of new gasoline supplies, he said.

Supplies are subject to disposition by the Energy Office under its allocation program, the spokesman said, but the FEO would consider each case on its own merit.

If imported gasoline did not exceed the government mandated quota system, which is 100 per cent of 1972 demand, a state could be allowed to keep the gasoline.

Energy Chief William E. Simon met today with members of the National Governors Conference's Executive Committee to try to work out problems on gasoline shortages which Simon has conceded are critical in parts of some states. At least two states have gone to court to challenge the FEO's gasoline allocation program.

A spokesman for Simon said he was asking the governors to be patient and cooperative.

Vice President Gerald R. Ford expressed optimism Wednesday that he thought the country was almost over the "hump of the temporary energy crisis" and the United States would be in much better shape once the Arab oil embargo is lifted.

En route to Cincinnati, Ford told newsmen that on the basis of a luncheon with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and two Arab ambassadors he was hopeful the oil embargo would be lifted soon. He did not elaborate.

Ford also said that President Nixon told him during a two-hour meeting Wednesday morning that there was little chance now of gasoline rationing.

S.D. water bills go up Monday

SAN DIMAS — The average homeowner in San Dimas will pay 13 cents more each month on the water bill because of a rate increase granted by the Public Utilities Commission.

The PUC granted a 1.16 per cent rate increase per year to the California Cities Water Co. to offset the company's higher cost of electricity in the San Dimas district.

The increase will add 13 cents a month to bills for the typical residential usage of 2,680 feet of water a month.

The company serves about 7,200 customers in San Dimas. The increase will be effective next Monday.

Car on freeway struck by rock

MONTCLAIR — A rock believed thrown from a schoolyard today struck the windshield of a car traveling on the San Bernardino Freeway.

Sarah Green, of 305 E. Bonnie Brae Court, the driver, said she was going west when the rock hit the windshield near Monte Vista Avenue.

A passenger, Vera Marchan of 520 E. Date St., was showered with glass but escaped injury.

American Indian chief, Pope meet

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI met with an American Indian chief Wednesday and asked him to convey his feelings of admiration and love "to the entire Indian American nation."

Chief Flying Owl of the Hempanwog tribe and his squaw, Shining Star, both garbed in Indian costumes, talked briefly with the Pontiff at the end of his weekly general audience.

Bill hikes pay of governor, other top state officials

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill raising the governor's salary to $60,000 a year and providing similar 20 per cent pay boosts for the state's six other constitutional officers was introduced Wednesday in the Senate.

Sen. Dennis E. Carpenter, R-Newport Beach, said that under his bill (SB1745), "over 50 appointed state bureaucrats will no longer make more money than the top seven elected officials in California. It simply does not make sense for an employe to make more money than the person who appoints him."

Under the measure, the governor's salary would be increased from $49,100 to $60,000. Carpenter noted the governor of New York is paid $85,000 annually.

The state attorney general's salary would go from $42,500 to $51,144. The pay of the lieutenant governor, secretary of state, treasurer, controller, and superintendent of public instruction would be raised from $35,000 to $42,500.

Carpenter pointed out the proposed raises are approximately 20 per cent but stressed they equal only 5 per cent a year since the last increase.

A bill providing similar pay hikes was rejected last month by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee.

Superfan gets year in prison for bilking Army of $338,000

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Edwin J. "Superfan" Bieler, who became famous as an irreverent sports commentator on local radio, was sentenced Wednesday to a year in federal prison for defrauding the military out of $338,000.

U.S. District Judge Irving Hil described as 'raw theft from the public treasury' the actions of the 49-year-old talk show host while operating a now defunct trucking company.

The rotund Bieler, 5 feet 6 inches and 232 pounds, had pleaded guilty to nine counts of filing false shipment claims with the Army and Air Force Exchange Service.

He had been charged in a 28-count indictment accusing him of filing false claims during the two-year period his firm, J.D. Transportation Inc., hauled beer and soft drinks from manufacturers to loading points for overseas shipment to military bases.

Bieler gave up the Wilmington, Calif. based trucking outfit a few years ago to become host of a sports interview program on radio station KWIZ in Santa Ana. Last year he took over KABC's 'Superfan' show in Los Angeles.

Bieler was charged with inflating the weight of cargoes hauled and with turning in duplicate bills.

He pleaded guilty to receiving $346,000 from the exchange for a bil lthat should have been only $8,000.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Paul G. Flynn said that Bieler made out claims for more than $1.5 million for shipments that were never made.

'I am aware he has established himself in a new career but I canot use this as a basis for ignoring his crimes," said Hill Wednesday.

Bieler will begin serving his term March 20 and will be eligible for parole after six to nine months. Probation officers had recommended a sentence of five years.

Bieler did not appear on his talk show Tuesday or Wednesday because of 'illness' and a KABC spokesman said no decision has been made yet about the future of the program.

Policeman has his fill of burglaries for day

ONTARIO — Ontario Police Sgt. Bill Carpenter was where the action was Wednesday morning, personally capturing two young suspects in separate burglaries occurring minutes apart.

Carpenter, police field supervisor for the day, was on the scene of the two burglaries, the first occurring at 10:10 a.m. at the home of Dixie Wynn Cleveland, 1006 Orchard Lane, and the second occurring at 10:25 a.m. in the home of Mrs. Alice L. Lockwood, 322 Granada Court.

In the first burglary a neighbor of Mrs. Cleveland called police when he saw two 15-year-old youths attempting to get through a side window. Carpenter arrived just as another neighbor of Mrs. Cleveland opened a window of her home scaring the youths away.

Officer Harold Bode, following Carpenter to the scene, saw one of the two youths running east on La Paloma Avenue and the second running to a front yard at Orchard Lane. Bode chased the first youth, capturing him a short distance away, and Carpenter stopped the second youth in the yard.

While Carpetner and bode were putting the suspects in the police car, the police dispatcher reported a burglary on Granada Court. Carpenter arrived at Mrs. Lockwood's home, followed by Officer Kenneth Erisman. As Erisman arrived he radioed Carpenter that a young boy had run out the back door of Mrs. Lockwood's home.

Carpenter ran after the boy, climbing over a wall and another six-foot chain link fence in another yard on H Street.

Meanwhile, Officer Erisman drove around to H Street to cut fff the fleeing youth. Erisman succeeded but ran into difficulty when he went into the same backyard where the youth had run. A large dog began chasing and barking at Erisman. Erisman, with his gun in one hand, ordered the youth to climb back over the fence while facing the angry dog.

The youth climbed back over the fence, only to be nabbed by Carpenter right behind him.

The 12-year-old Lockwood burglary suspect was placed in the back seat of Carpenter's car with the suspect in the prior burglary and all were returned to the police station.

Crackdown on big oil cartel foiled 20 years ago

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department was ready to crack down 20 years ago on a price-boosting cartel of big oil companies but the National Security Council under President Eisenhower forbade it, according to testimony presented to Senate investigators.

"The current international oil crisis did not suddenly spring full blown when the Arab governments decided to seize the oil fields last fall," David I. Haberman, a former Justice Department antitrust lawyer, said Wednesday.

"It represented a logical extension of a process set in motion by the international oil companies 40 to 50 years ago."

Haberman told a Senate foreign relations subcommittee the Justice Department filed an antitrust suit in 1953 to break up an international cartel of U.S. and foreign oil giants that was restricting Middle East oil production and artificially boosting prices.

He said the cartel, which dated in smaller form from 1928, consisted of "the seven sisters" —Exxon (then Standard of New Jersey), Gulf, Texaco, Mobil, Socal, Shell and British Petroleum.

But soon after the suit had been filed, Haberman said, the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency backed a coup in Iran and the National Security Council and the State Department got control of decision-making for that area.

"NSC directives precluded the Justice Department from challenging the legality of joint production, joint refining, joint storage and joint transportation storage and joint transportation ventures among the seven companies," Haberman said.

These joint arrangements "were among the most significant features of the postwar supply cartel," he said. "Thus, in practical effect early National Security constraints imposed by the National Security Council ... had cut the very heart out of the oil cartel case."

Haberman said the NSC barred another Justice Department attempt in 1957 and the antitrust effort petered out inconclusively in the 1960's. He said he had worked on this case for 15 years and quit Justice in disgust in 1972.

Installation dinner tonight at Boys' Home

JUDGE DAVID KENYON

LA VERNE — Donald R. Des Combes, a Pomona insurance man, will be installed president of the board at Le Roy Boys' Home at an installation dinner there tonight.

Des Combes, past president of the Pomona Chamber of Commerce and of Friends of Ontario International Airport, will succeed George W. Callaway, who was elected last June to fill an unexpired term.

Judge David V. Kenyon of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, who handles juvenile offenders, will be speaker at the dinner.

Ontario metal firm owner beaten, robbed

ONTARIO — Police this morning continued their search for two men who beat and robbed the owner of the Del Guzzi Aluminum and Zinc Smelting Co. at 11700 Patton Road Tuesday night.

Police said that two men walked into the scrap yard of the metal company about 11:20 p.m. Tuesday and were confronted by the owner, Tony Del Guzzi. Del Guzzi reportedly told the two men to leave his property, since the company was closed.

Del Guzzi said the two men cursed and attacked him. He said one of the men swung his fist and the other kicked him. The two men then hit Del Guzzi over the head with a hard object knocking him down. Del Guzzi, who suffered a head laceration, said the men took his wallet containing a small amount of cash and fled. Del Guzzi was given first aid treatment at San Antonio Community Hospital and released.

Police said Del Guzzi described his assailants as Caucasians, one wearing a full dark beard.

Planners delay approval of townhouse permit

By MAE TATE
P-B Staff Writer

CHINO — The question of density caused the Planning Commission here Wednesday night to delay approval of a special conditional use permit for development of 40 acres of townhouses, condominiums and equestrian trails just west of Corona Expressway.

The commission voted to table the request from Gregg Kent to its March meeting after commissioner James Sanders asked for more consideration of the density of 8.4 homes per acre on 38 acres at Pipeline and Eucalyptus avenues and the need for a neighborhood convenience center on 2.3 acres within that development.

Gale Carr, director of building, planning and community development, had recommended approval on the residential development, but wanted a delay on any acceptance of the center of four shops, a restaurant and a neighborhood market on 2.3 acres in the development. He pointed out that the grading had begun for the construction of a shopping center to the south at Pipeline and Carbon Canyon Road.

The planned residential development is to include equestrian and bike trails around its perimeter. In other action, the commission did approve a zone change from single family residential to residential-agricultural on about 2.35 acres around the tract to allow these trails.

The property would include 288 units of townhouses and condominiums to be constructed in four phases. It would also include an expansive recreational area and facilities for 28 horses to be housed. These stables would be for the use of tenants witin the development only.

Carr reported that the developer's density figure of 8.4 dwelling units per acre was a reduction in the original request nearly a year ago. However, Sanders and other commissioners still questioned if the density is "appropriate." He cited the low sales rate in existing tracts of this type as evidence that persons moving to Chino are not particularly interested in condominium living.

Max Scott, representing Boys Republic which is immediately north of the proposed development, reported that this school-farm community's officials opposed the project. He commented that the density would be detrimental to Boys Republic immediately and in the future; that there might be difficulty in selling units there and that it would drastically change the rural atmosphere that many have found attractive in Chino.

Bob Montoya of the Glen-Ridge Homeowners Association also opposed the development. He cited increased traffic, posible overloading the present schools and lack of compatibility with current development as reasons for his group's opposition. John Pierce Jr., representing his father who owns a dairy next to the project, also mentioned incompatibility.

The developer will continue to meet with city planning staff to iron out differences before the March 4 meeting.

Beaty names defendants as slayers

LOS ANGELES — Two defendants charged with murder in the bloody 1972 California Institution for Men prison escape were identified by inmate Ronald Wayne Beaty, the man they set free, as the pair who shot and killed prison guard Jesus Sanchez.

Beaty concluded his two-week testimony Wednesday by naming the pair from Palo Alto, Robert Seabock, 22, and Jean Hobson, 46, as two of the people who helped engineer his escape. Beaty identified Seabock as one of two men holding revolvers on the guards just before he heard shooting. Beaty's testimony has already helped convict two others in the prison escape plot, Benton Douglas Burt and his wife Andrea Holman Burt. Beaty was being transported by car from CIM to a court hearing when the ambush occurred.

The prosecution's case is expected to close this week. Two key prosecution witnesses refused to testify and were cited for contempt.

Sylvia Stead, of Los Altos and Laura Taulbee of Saratoga are expected to appeal the contempt of court citation next Monday before trial judge Charles C. Stratton.

Chevrolet Caprice Classic. Why settle for something else?

In a time of turned-back thermostats and lowered speed limits, some say we must also turn our backs on elegance, lower our taste, and settle for something else.

Why settle for anything else when you can settle into a Caprice? If your needs include spaciousness and your preference dictates class, Caprice should make sense for you. Caprice, the uppermost Chevrolet, is a distinguished car, soft and comfortable to sit in, smooth and quiet on the road.

Why settle for something else when you can enjoy the Caprice Classic at your local Chevrolet dealer's?

Aim at compromise in California energy planning

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Reagan administration and the author of far-reaching energy planning and conservation legislation today headed into a new round of talks aimed at reaching a compromise on the bill.

The proposal—designed to curb wasteful energy use and to streamline power plant siting procedures—cleared the Senate Public Utilities Committee Wednesday on a 4-1 vote. The bill (AB1575) now goes to the Finance Committee.

Assemblyman Charles Warren, D-Los Angeles, author of the bill, met with Gov. Ronald Reagan only a few others after the committee action.

"I am optimistic that an understanding can be arrived at," Warren told a newsman following the nearly hour-long conference.

He said negotiations involving his staff and the governor's would be held probably "within the next 10 days."

Under the bill, a new commission would be created to provide "one-step" power plant siting approval, set energy conservation standards, forecast the future demand for electricity, conduct research into alternative sources of energy and take emergency steps in case of "severe shortages."

The bill would also levy a tax on electricity users, raising $32 million annually for the purposes of the new commission.

Donald Livingston, assistant to Reagan, told the committee the governor was opposed to the tax levy and to placing the plant siting and energy conservation functions in the same agency.

Warren said Reagan expressed "flexibility" in his objections during their discussion of the bill, which is similar to one vetoed last year by the governor.

The assemblyman said the measure is needed to deal with the long-range aspects of increasing energy demands. He stated that every 10 years the demand for electricity in California will double.

He declared studies have shown that currently 40 to 50 per cent of energy is "wasteful."

Warren also said the tax would amount to $2.50 a year for each California household.

Lobbyists for utility companies and the state Public Utilities Commission, which would lose some authority under the bill, opposed the measure.

Representatives of PG&E, Southern California Edison and General Electric and the California Municipal Utilities Association complained the new commission would be oriented towards conservation, opposed the tax and declared the siting procedure was "no more efficient and no more expeditious than the present process."

In a related development, Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post proposed creation of a new state resources conservation board to protect the environment, regulate development and possibly approve siting for nuclear power plants.

Upland council candidates present views

Forum targets transportation, recreation

By PAT SPENCER
P-B Staff Writer

UPLAND — The need for a better transportation system and more recreational facilities were twin themes on the minds of City Council candidates at a public forum Wednesday night at Baldy View School.

Explaining their platforms and answering questions from some 46 persons in the audience were incumbents A.M. Hawkins Jr., Harold Bailin and John E. McCarthy, and challenger Mrs. Ina Petokas. They are seeking three seats on the council in the March 5 municipal election.

Bailin, who led off, said he planned to push for continued development of the city's park sites, especially the 600-acre regional park in the Cucamonga Wash area, to provide recreational facilities needed during the energy crunch.

He called on all citizens and civic organizations to make a "voluntary sweat contribution" to get the parks developed for the least amount of money.

He also urged that a new circulation pattern of public transportation was needed "even more now and must be "pushed harder."

Hawkins briefly presented his background qualifications which include 12 years on the council and said he wanted to see the new Civic Center completed.

If re-elected, he said, he plans to continue to "be fair and use old-fashioned horse sense" in his decisions.

McCarthy felt his first term had given him a good understanding of government which would be advantageous during a second term.

Like Bailin, he urged better transportation facilities and more recreational services.

He added that he would continue to push for orderly growth with necessary city services.

Mrs. Petokas, a housewife and member of various Upland School District planning committees, chided the present council for its decisions in permitting so many apartment and small restaurant developments in the city.

If elected, she would push for "effective government, good quality development and a good tax base." She also urged greater city cooperation with the school district to utilize school facilities for recreational purposes.

In answering questions from the audience, the incumbent candidates thought the city had done a fair job in, as Bailin put it, meeting the legal, ethical and moral requirements of the Brown Act in its negotiations with city employes. Mrs. Petokas said she had no experience on the issue, but would research it.

Asked how they would beat inflation, the incumbents agreed they had no ready answers, but concurred with Bailin that the city had to recognize that income was limited in Upland and that priorities must be carefully selected.

All the candidates expressed neutral opinions when asked whether they supported the police retirement ballot issue. All expressed support of the water revenue bond issue, but Mrs. Petokas said the city had waited too long to bring the matter to the voters.

Bailin also expressed a similar opinion when he noted the development of the Civic Center was pushed ahead of water needs.

Prior to the candidates' appearances, brief presentations on each of the ballot issues were made by City Manager Elwin Alder and Police Lt. Coy Estes.

During the forum, sponsored by the Upland City Employes Association, it was announced that the UCEA has endorsed the proposed police retirement system.

JOGGER WITH A MESSAGE — "As a nation we are in . . . a mess," says Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis. And he says the reason is simple: "We are lazy." Sen. Proxmire is shown running—not necessarily for office—a favorite exercise in Washington.

Automakers going back on promise not to hike prices?

By EDWARD S. LECHTZIN

DETROIT (UPI) — U.S. automakers who won price increases in December in exchange for a promise not to raise prices again until September now say they can't wait that long because of strong inflationary pressures.

It's doubtful the Cost of Living Council (CLC) could hold the industry to its pledge, because it lifted Phase IV wage-price controls when it granted the price hikes. A CLC spokesman said there has been "no formal word from any of the auto companies."

General Motors Corp. Tuesday became the latest to hint broadly that more price boosts are in the works. Only Chrysler Corp., did not agree to the plan and says it is free to boost prices when it wants.

The automakers have complained that rising labor and material costs, combined with lower profits on hot-selling small cars, are eroding their profits. In the final quarter of 1973, sales of GM, Ford and Chrysler were up 5.1 per cent from a year earlier at $18 billion, but profits of $648.4 million were down 34.6 per cent.

The CLC left a loophole when it approved the second round of price hikes last Dec. 10, saying a further increase might be allowed if forced by "unforseen major economic events." Examples, the CLC said would be a severe decline in the economy, a major foreign currency disruption or "cost increases substantially beyond those presently projected for the balance of the model year."

It is the third factor which GM, Ford and Chrysler have cited as evidence in the last two weeks for a possible new increase which would be the third on 1974 models. The first, in September, allowed hikes of between $51 and $74 and the second an average wholesale increase of $150—or almost $200 when passed on to the consumer.

Descendant of Napoleon weds

PARIS (UPI) — Princess Catherine Napoleon, 23, a descendant of the family of Napoleon Bonaparte, has become engaged to the Marquis Nicolo di San Germano, 25, her spokesman said Monday.

Catherine's father, Prince Louis Jerome Victor-Emmanuel Leopold Marie Napoleon, is the great-grandson of King Jerome of Westphalia who was a younger brother of emperor Napoleon I. The spokesman said wedding plans would be announced later.

Iowa community may become gasless town

NEW HARTFORD, Iowa (UPI) — There is only one service station in this northeast Iowa community and its operator says his February allocation of gasoline is all but gone.

Bob Evans, operator of Bob's Skelly station, said he had only a few gallons of gasoline left, with no assurances he will receive any more before March 1.

Evans said his fuel supplier delivered 1,000 gallons of regular and 550 gallons of premium to his station Monday but said it's nearly all been sold. He said even Monday's fuel supplies were unexpected.

"My gas man has been able to slip me a little extra, or else I'd have been done before now," Evans said. "And, my gas man says the situation is going to be worse next month."

Evans' whose lone station serves the town of 690 persons, said he sold 19,000 gallons of gasoline in January, but his February allotment was only 10,700 gallons.

New Hartford was a two-station town until last summer when a Conoco outlet closed down in reaction to the fuel squeeze. Evans noted that with the Conoco station closed and his allocations being trimmed, there is only about 30 to 35 per cent as much gasoline in town as there was nine months ago.

Officials said the town's three fire trucks, police car, ambulance and other vehicles are kept running with gas from a city owned bulk tank, and the school system also has its own tanks for its school buses.

But private citizens often must travel to nearby Cedar Falls or Parkersburg to buy gasoline, and the situation could get even worse.

Evans said with shrinking gasoline sales, he may be forced to close his station after 9 ½ years in the same location.

New Hartford would then be a no tank town.

Liquor control member booked on drunk count

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — A Michigan lawmaker and member of the State House Liquor Control Committee is in line to lose his driver's license for 90 days for refusing to submit himself to a breathalyzer test after being arrested recently for drunk driving.

Rep. James E. O'Neill Jr., D-Saginaw and associate speaker pro tem of the House, was arrested by Eaton County Sheriff's Deputies in Charlotte after his vehicle was observed being driven erratically and running a red light.

He was held in Eaton County Jail until his arraignment later in the day by District Judge Kenneth Hansen. O'Neill stood mute and was freed on $100 bond.

A driver faces automatic 90 days suspension for refusing to take a breathalyzer test to determine sobriety under Michigan law.

Court gives police greater leeway in wiretapping, warrantless search

By CHARLOTTE MOULTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a pair of 6-3 decisions, the Supreme Court Wednesday gave police and federal authorities greater leeway to use evidence obtained from authorized wiretaps and to conduct searches without a warrant.

In both rulings, Justices Potter Stewart and Byron R. White joined President Nixon's four court appointees to provide the majority. Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall dissented.

The majority reversed findings in favor of criminal defendants by federal district and appeals courts.

The wiretap case originated in Chicago, were officials obtained a court order to tap telephone conversations of Irving Kahn and "others yet unknown." Later, evidence from the wiretapping was used to bring gambling charges against Kahn and his wife, Minnie.

U. S. District Judge Thomas R. McMillen and the 7th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals barred use of the wiretap evidence against Mrs. Kahn on the ground she was not a person "unknown" to the investigators when they applied for court authority, and her name should have been listed.

But Stewart, who wrote the majority opinion, said there was nothing in the 1968 Crime Control Act which would support such a conclusion.

"The clear implication of (the) language is that when there is probable cause to believe that a particular telephone is being used to commit an offense but no particular person is identifiable, a wire interception order may nevertheless be properly issued under the statute," he said.

In the other case, White declared for the majority that arresting officers are entitled to conduct a warrantless search of a home by showing that a third party "who possessed common authority" over the premises gave consent.

The issue arose when police arrested William Earl Mattlock, a bank robbery suspect, in the yard of a rural Pardeeville, Wis., home rented by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Marshall. The Marshalls' daughter, who said she occupied the same room with Mattlock, gave the arresting officers permission to search the premises.

U. S. District Judge James E. Doyle of Madison ruled out evidence that $4,995 in cash was found in the room on the ground the daughter's consent could not extend to Mattlock's rights against unconstitutional search and seizure.

But White held that "when the prosecution seeks to justify a warrantless search by proof of voluntary consent, it is not limited to proof that the consent was given by the defendant, but may show that permission to search was obtained from a third party who possessed common authority or other sufficient relationship to the premises or effects sought to be inspected."

The court also:

—Ruled unanimously that the government cannot limit general welfare assistance for Indians only to those who live on a reservation. The decision in an Arizona case stopped short of declaring such assistance must be provided all Indians throughout the country.

—Threw out by a 6-3 vote a New Orleans ordinance making it a crime to curse or use obscenity against a policeman on duty. The majority declared the statute unconstitutionally broad and vague.

Nixon asks continued medical, health controls

By CRAIG A. PALMER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon said Wednesday he will ask Congress to continue wage-price controls on doctors, hospitals and other providers of health care until enactment of his comphensive health program.

The Economic Stablization Program authority expires April 30, but Nixon, in a special health message to Congress, said that he would submit legislation to continue controls on the health care industry.

"Our health insurance proposal would call for states to oversee the operation of insurance carriers and establish sound procedures for cost control," the message said.

"Until these or other controls are in place, I recommend that our present authorities to control health care costs be continued. I'm asking Congress for such authority."

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Casper W. Weinberger, who met for 25 minutes with Nixon Wednesday, said he reiterated his interest in passage of national health insurance legislation this year. Aside from energy, this is "clearly the highest priority in the domestic field," Weinberger said.

The requested legislation would specify that controls remain in effect until passage of the administration proposal and require that there be no period during which controls are not in effect.

Nixon's message also disclosed new details on creation of an Office of Health Education in HEW to coordinate health education through schools, mass media, neighborhood and community organizations and the health care system itself.

His message made no mention of intended spending on the major initiatives. But HEW officials said for the first time at a White House briefing that the program would cover about 80 per cent of personal health costs.

The message was largely a summary of previous policy statements and legislative initiatives already proposed or discussed by the administration, including its major domestic initiative this year, the Comprehensive Health Insurance Plan (CHIP) which was sent to Congress Feb. 6.

Three other major objectives are assuring an adequate supply of doctors, nurses and other health professionals; providing a full range of health services to be used efficiently by those who need them, and strong research to prevent and cure diseases, with an emphasis on heart diseases and cancer, the nation's two leading killers.

It's Mitchell's show as trial begins for ex-Nixon aides

By H. D. QUIGG
UPI Senior Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Public interest at the scene of the drama wrought by the criminal trial of two former Nixon cabinet members seems to be practically ...well ...inoperative, but there is no doubt who the protagonist of the piece is going to be—John N. Mitchell.

The 60-year-old Wall Street lawyer and former attorney general arrived 50 minutes early in a blue limousine for jury-picking at the federal building on historic Foley Square Tuesday and was greeted by two dozen reporters and no public.

The press made so much over Mitchell that nobody noticed the arrival right behind him by cab of the other defendant, Maurice H. Stans, 65, the former secretary of commerce and presidential campaign fund-raiser.

KEY FIGURES IN TRIAL — Federal court in New York is the scene of what could be one of the most explosive trials on the current Watergate-tainted political scene as John Mitchell and co-defendant Maurice Stans go before the bar on charges of conspiracy, obstructing justice and perjury.

At a motion-making session that delayed the start of jury picking until noon, Mitchell, in a brown suit, slouched his frame in a green leather armchair to the left of his counsel, one finger probing a cheek on his dour face, then hand to mouth, hand to chin—deprived by court rule of his faithful pipe.

John P. Diuguid, of the Stans lawyer team, moved to have the trial held elsewhere because of the pretrial publicity up "to last Friday in the New York area."

This included, he said, even "an ornate coloring book" and a printed assertion that Stans was "smart rich" and had a "reputation for unscrupulousness." It was hard to know, Diuguid said, "how any literate individual in this town" could not be influenced by all this.

"I think we'll have to find out by interrogation of the jury," Federal Judge Lee Parsons Gagliardi told him.

The black-robed judge, presiding in front of an American flag on a staff topped by a silver eagle, is a dark-haired-hollow-cheeked former crack trial attorney who is a usually smiling figure on the bench, quick in colloquy. He pronounces his name Galyardy, without sounding the middle G.

The "finding out" by prospective juror questioning is a process of preliminary examination to test competency for service. It is called "the voir dire." That means "to speak the truth."

This phrase conflicts with an opinion once uttered, in an interview, by the eminent Judge Harold R. Medina, now retired from the U.S. Court of Appeals here.

"Jurors," said the judge, "lie like hell."

He meant they stretch the truth during voir dire in an effort to get out of being picked to sit in the jury box.

The ritual of opening federal court is often intoned here—if the clerk at hand is a sidewalk-talk native New Yorker—in a charming admixture of Old English and Brooklynese something like this:

"Heah ya, heah ya, heah ya! All poisons having business with the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, drawr near, give your attention, and ye shall be hoid."

This accomplished Tuesday, Judge Gagliardi told the 79 prospects seated before him that the jury would be locked up for the duration of the trial, once sworn in—that is, sequestered at night—and said he wanted to know if this would cause them any hardship.

The prospects then were questioned one by one. Since the prospects took up most of the seats, only 10 places were available for the press. Those 10 were to come out and tell the rest of the working press what went on. The favored institutions of communication—selected by the court—included something called the New York Law Journal.

The judge, in this case, will ask all the jurors questions. He called up the prospects individually to the bench and questioned each one, with attorneys from both sides present.

When the 10 informing reporters came out, they reported this. They also said the questions and answers were in a tone of voice inaudible to them in the back row of the room. Anyhow, on the day, 94 were questioned and 58 excused.

There is no question of an interested public hanging around the corridor outside the courtroom. No one, press included, is allowed to loiter there.

Gas station operator is shot dead

GARY, Ind. (UPI) — A service station operator was shot dead Tuesday night in and exchange of gunfire with an irate motorist who cut ahead of the 25-car gas line to get air for one of his tires.

The autoist was wounded twice and reported in fair condition Wednesday.

Willie Hartiman, 45, the owner of the station, was dead on arrival at Mercy Hospital and Earnest Howard, 47, was taken to Methodist Hospital with bullet wounds in the eye and arm, police said.

Police said the men became involved in an argument when Howard drove his car into the station ahead of more than 25 other motorists, to have some air pumped into one of his tires.

Both men drew handguns during the dispute, police said, and exchanged fire.

Thwarts all efforts to extradite him

Vesco, a codefendant in absentia

NASSAU, The Bahamas (UPI) — Robert L. Vesco, a codefendant in the Mitchell-Stans trial, has lived here and in Costa Rica since November, 1972.

He left the United States when the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) filed a suit against him and 20 associates for dismantling the once mighty mutual fund complex Investors Overseas Services.

According to the criminal charges filed against him in the trial of the former cabinet officers, Vesco tried to obstruct the SEC investigation by making a secret contribution of $200,000 to the Committee to Reelect the President.

Former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans, as the committee finance chairman, allegedly accepted the money from a Vesco associate on April 10, 1972. That was three days after the effective date of the new law requiring public disclosure of all contributions to campaigns of candidates for federal office.

John Mitchell, the former U.S. attorney general who was chairman of the committee, allegedly arranged meetings between Vesco's associates and SEC officials in exchange for the contribution.

Two months after the SEC suit was filed, the committee returned to Vesco the $200,000 cash contribution and a $50,000 check he also had donated.

Attempts by the U.S. government to have Vesco extradited to face these and a series of other criminal and civil charges against him have been unsuccessful. Costa Rican courts ruled last summer the charges are not covered in its extradition treaty with the United States. A Bahamian court ruled similarly last December.

The American financier who built his financial empire from a corporate base in Fairfield, N.J., continues to operate it from bases here and in the Costa Rican capital of San Jose.

He has a spacious but inauspicious residence in Nassau and a new $500,000 home in San Jose for his wife and four children. They are not active socially except within a close group of friends, most of whom are business associates.

Among his friends outside the group are Costa Rican President Jose Figueres and Bahamian Prime Minister Lynden O. Pindling, whose 1972 election campaign Vesco helped finance.

Both Pindling and Figueres have acknowledged receiving loans from Vesco's Bahamas sau, the money conduit for Commonwealth Bank in Nas- his financial network.

Vesco wrested control of IOS from Bernard Cornfeld, its founder, in 1970. The SEC charged in its suit that Vesco and his associates then began a process of disseminating the assets of the IOS mutual funds that included "looting" them of $224 million.

As a result of the SEC and many stockholder suits, Cornfeld has been imprisoned in Geneva since May, 1973. The remaining assets of the IOS and Vesco's American-based firm, International Controls Corp., are held in receivership or administered by various courts or appointees.

30 Moslem nations to hold conference

LAHORE, Pakistan (UPI) — Thirty nations representing about 600 million Moslems meet next week in an Islamic summit conference expected to deal with issues that vitally affect the other four-fifths of the world's people.

The conference, starting Friday, was called initially to deal with the Middle East problem and the Arab struggle to force Israel to withdraw from all Arab territory occupied during and since the 1967 war.

But all indications are that the summit will deal with much more than the Arab-Israeli issue. Arif Iftikhar, a member of the ruling Pakistan People's party, told the Senate in Islamabad last Friday the Lahore gathering should serve as a basis for creating "a Moslem commonwealth" patterned after the European Common Market.

The government-controlled Pakistan Times wrote, "Although the summit was called to consider specifically the Mideast issue and the question of Jerusalem... it's quite conceivable that the summit's scope may be broadened to consider other related issues such as threats of military intervention to forcibly end the Arab oil embargo, compensatory steps to lighten the oil burden of friendly Afro-Asian states and greater economic cooperation."

For security reasons, host Pakistan would not list all the dignitaries expected to attend.

But President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, perhaps the most powerful Arab anywhere, has said he would lead his country's delegation.

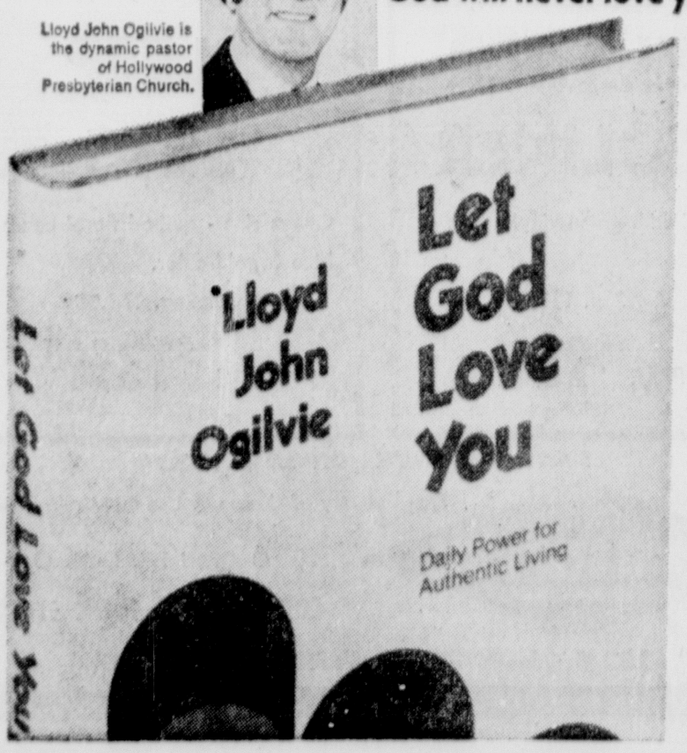

Special non-government officials invited include Yasser Arafat, head of the guerrilla umbrella group, the Palestinian Liberation Organization, and Tengku Abdul Rahman, former secretary general of the Islamic Secretariat and a former prime minister of Malaysia.

Those firmly committed to attending include King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, a prime mover in Islamic affairs who spearheaded the oil embargo, and Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy, who boycotted the Arab Summit conference in November and opposes Sadat's moves toward a Middle East settlement.

Hundreds show up for chance in movie

Residents play horse-racing crowd in fairgrounds scene

By GEORGE MacLAREN
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — It was an exciting time for several hundred Pomona Valley citizens Wednesday as they munched on their free hot dogs and drank their Cokes in exchange for the opportunity of appearing in a horse-racing crowd scene with movie stars Elliot Gould and George Segal.

Movie director Robert Altman, famous for his highly successful "MASH," has chosen the clubhouse of the grandstand at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds to make a segment of his next production, "California Split," with Gould and Segal.

Several hundred persons answered a Progress-Bulletin ad of Tuesday which promised free food and drink for those who would act as extras in the Altman comedy.

They lined up at the special fairgrounds gate long before the 9 a.m. opening in the crisp cold morning, and provided a contrast for the record crowd of fishermen intent on landing an enticing limit of 10 trout in the water skiing pool a few hundred yards away.

The valleyites joined a hundred extras from Synanon, drug rehabilitation center, bused in for the three-day shooting. They watched as Altman converted the empty clubhouse into a thriving horse-racing day, complete with ticket sellers, racing forms, and discarded tickets strewn about the floor.

Neither Segal nor Gould were at a loss for autograph seekers, who crowded around as floodlights and mikes were being set up and yards of electric cables were laid and taped down.

Altman said that this will be the third picture in which he has worked with Elliot Gould. First came "MASH," then "The Long Goodbye," and now "California Split."

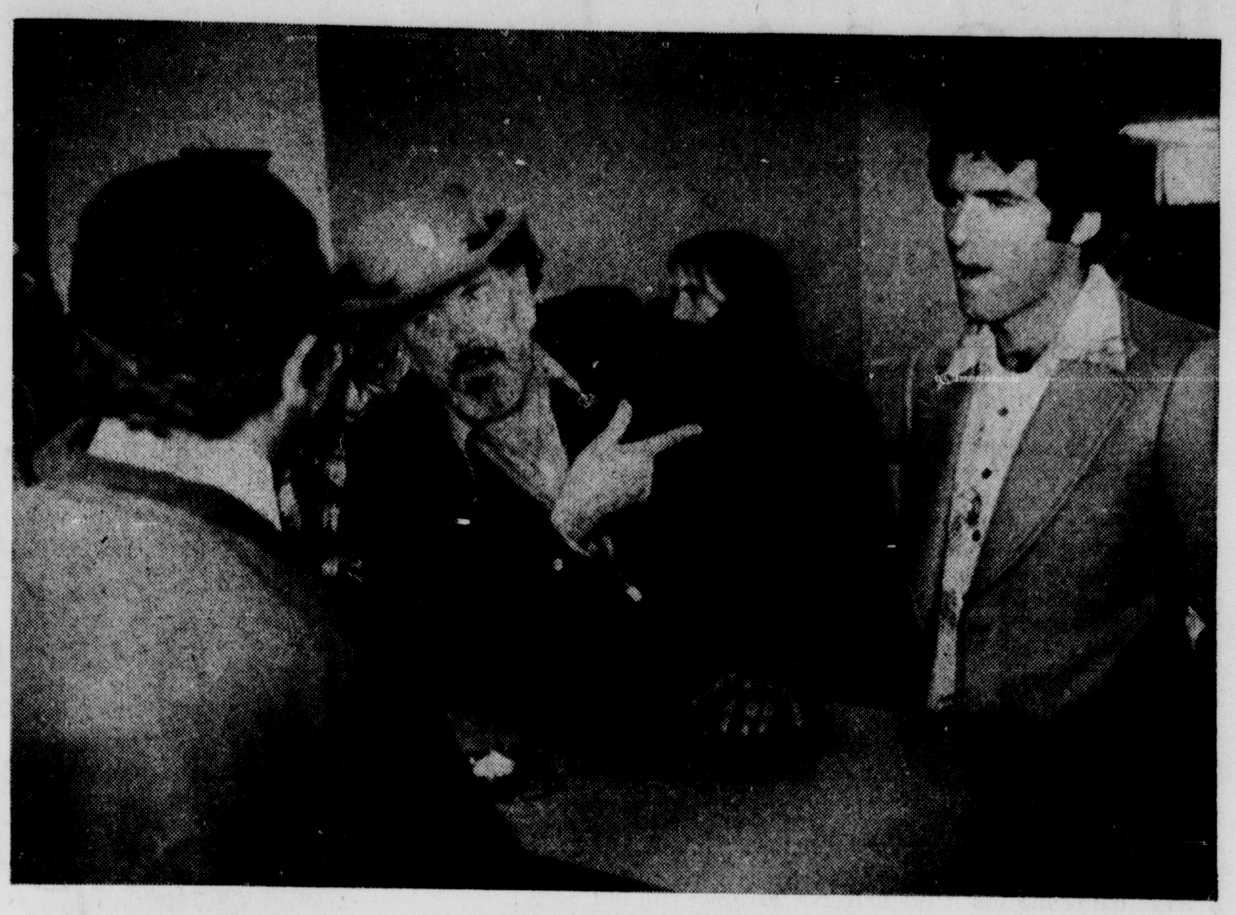

In "California Split" Segal portrays an editor of a magazine who runs into a gambler, played by Gould, at a Gardena card club. The pair continue their winning ways at the fairgrounds track, and finish their spree in Reno, the "biggest little city in the world."

Altman said that he always has looked for a script about a gambler which was not depressing.

The tall director, wearing a mad-hatter's garb, estimated that the film, produced under his company name of Won World and released through Columbia Pictures, would cost $2.5 million.

Altman said the movie would require about nine weeks of shooting.

Asked why he chose the fairgrounds track, Altman explained that he wanted a track where he could have some control.

ALTMAN DIRECTS

Bearded movie director Robert Altman explains to Andy, a member of Synanon portraying a bartender, and to movie star Elliot Gould how to proceed with a scene in "California Split," which is being filmed at the grandstand of the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds. The Altman movie stars Gould and George Segal in a gambling spree which begins at a Gardena card club and ends at Reno, Nev.

Law forbids motorists to remove smog devices

POMONA — Don't touch those anti-smog devices attached to your car.

It's illegal to disconnect the emission-control equipment on vehicles registered in California, reports the state air resources board.

Some confusion over removal of the devices resulted from a syndicated column by Paul Harvey which appeared in the Progress-Bulletin's Monday edition.

Harvey reported some car owners are removing the emission control devices from new cars in the interest of saving four gallons per tankful.

"The law says that manufacturers must install emission control gadgets; manufacturers and-or dealers may not remove them. But there's nothing in present EPA (Environmental Protection Agency) regulations which prohibits you or your neighborhood mechanic from removing the equipment," reported Harvey.

William Simmons, the California Air Resources Board's executive officer, explained the federal law does not prohibit the disconnection of the devices by an individual.

"It is not a federal offense," he added. "But it is against the law in California to disconnect or modify any smog control device, whether it was original equipment or is a retrofit device on a used vehicle."

Simmons said the new vehicle emissions have reduced drastically in the past decade. "We don't want to lose the advantage we have gained in air pollution control."

The California Highway Patrol office in Claremont received numerous telephone inquiries following the publication of Harvey's column, said Capt. W. C. Jones, area commander.

"It would be unfair to the citizens of the community if the error were not corrected. It is a violation in this state to remove emission control equipment," he emphasized.

Man accused in murder arraigned

POMONA — Ronnie Willis Michael was arraigned Wednesday on charges that he murdered his estranged wife and her companion here Feb. 12.

Michael, of Covina, appeared before Pomona Municipal Court Judge W. J. Harpham who scheduled the preliminary hearing for Feb. 27. Harpham ordered Michael to remain in custody without bail.

Michael is accused of the bludgeoning death of Connie Gail Michael, 28, and the shotgun death of Wayne Douglas Beach, 28, in Beach's home at 1612 S. White Ave. He was arrested last Friday after undergoing a lie detector test police said he volunteered to take.

Michael called police the morning of the slayings and said he found the body of his wife on the floor of Beach's home when he went there to pick up his children for a visit. Divorce proceedings were under way at that time, he told officers.

County fair keeps its eye on energy in laying plans

POMONA — Los Angeles County Fair officials, happy with two straight years of attendance topping the 1.2 million mark, currently are working on plans which "will best fit into the energy crisis," announced Secretary-Manager Phil D. Shepherd in his annual report.

Shepherd explained that he feels it is a "little too early" to tell what effect the energy crisis will have on the 1974 fair.

He said that officials hope for a break on transportation such as bus transportation to the exposition.

Shepherd attributed the fair's favorable attendance to the public's being offered "a real good dollar value investment."

He noted that a person may pay $4.50 to see a circus, but that for $1.50 he can see all of the county fair and the Polack Bros. circus, too.

Shepherd said that despite the rising costs of fair expenses, "we definitely are not going to increase our admission price for the 1974 fair. We don't feel we can."

Looking at the 1974 fair, Shepherd announced that the National Band of New Zealand, which will be touring the United States this year, will perform the first 10 nights. He said that another attraction will be coupled with the international group during the first part of the fair.

The Polack Bros. Circus will entertain fairgoers during the final seven nights at the grandstand.

Shepherd said that representatives of the New Zealand group visited the 1973 Los Angeles County Fair, and liked what they saw.

Members of the band are chosen from throughout the nation of three million for the highly desired positions. Maori dancers will accompany the band.

Shepherd reported that the fair's board of directors has approved spending $300,000 for capital improvements this year, including $80,000 for improved lighting in the northwest parking lot.

Shepherd said the upgrading of the horse barns will be continued, and that the metal doors will be painted bright, attractive colors.

A new restroom will be built near Gate K, water lines will be added, and more than $30,000 invested in needed new and replacement equipment.

The underside of the grandstand roof will be painted at a cost of $30,000.

The final third of the fairgrounds landscaping is being completed, and will finish the project from the floral building to the lagoons next to the administration building.

Shepherd said that more than $300,000 was spent in 1973 for improvements. The largest item was the first of three phases of improved lighting on the largest west parking lot. He stressed that the lot is better lit with 54,000 kilowatts than previously with 88,000 kilowatts.

Nearly $14,000 was spent for new booths and equipment in the Junior Fair building, which seemed very popular with all fair participants.

Shepherd said that the fair was able to resume poultry and pigeon shows, and alternating them with the rabbit show with greatly reduced entries "made a much more interesting show for the public.

The Home Arts Department "again received a new look in display methods and were well accepted by exhibitors and the public as well," Shepherd commented.

Shepherd emphasized that the fairgrounds are well used throughout the year, not just during the 17 days of the annual fair.

He estimated the interim attendance at 457,066, and explained that includes year-round use by Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, the Citrus Belt Model Train Club, and the Pomona Valley Rod and Reel Club.

Horse shows, picnics, small stock shows, trailer club rallies, and private and public interest events swell the attendance.

POMONA'S A STATE WINNER

Rudy Carpio, left, and his brother, Vince, and Mayor Ray J. Lepire, right on behalf of the City of Pomona accept one of the environmental awards presented in Los Angeles Tuesday at the sixth annual California and Pacific Southwest Parks and Recreation Conference. Presenting the award is Mary Grogan of Modesto, new president of the California Parks and Recreation Society which sponsored the awards program. Pomona won the award for its Cherrieville and Sharkie parks.

Pomona mini-parks win state award

LOS ANGELES — Pomona's Cherrieville and Sharkey parks were selected for one of the state environmental planning awards announced at the sixth annual California and Pacific Southwest Parks and Recreation Conference here.

The two parks won a Citation Award plaque from the California Parks and Recreation Society for placing first in the judging category for mini-parks.

The state society's awards program also included categories for regional, special facility, community, neighborhood and tot lot parks.

Winners were determined based on the demonstration of outstanding professional achievements on individual park site design.

The environmental planning awards program was limited to cities, counties and special districts within the State of California.

Awards were announced at the final session Tuesday of the California and Pacific Southwest conference at the Los Angeles Convention Center. Accompanying Pomona Mayor Ray J. Lepire to the Awards presentations were:

City Administrator Jerrold Gonce; Parks and Recreation Director Jack Hoxsey; Vince and Rudy Carpio representing the Sharkie Committee (a neighborhood improvement group); Mrs. Soledad Garcia and Rudy Gutierrez, representing the Cherrieville Council; Joey Fuentez of the community relations office; Ron Pflugrath and David Crust of the planning division; Sherry Schmid of the recreation division; and David Angelo of Barrio Planners landscape architects, the firm that designed Sharkie.

Cherrieville, at the northwest corner of Hamilton Boulevard and Monterey Avenue, and Sharkie, at the southeast corner of Grand and Park avenues, were developed as neighborhood parks chiefly with grants received from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Dedication programs were held at both sites July 22. Raymond List Orton was the landscape architect, and Goodman and Peloquin, Inc., of La Habra, the contractor, for Cherrieville. The Brindie Co. of Los Angeles was the contractor for Sharkie.

Both parks serve heavy concentrations of Mexican-Americans.

Opinion

The good, bad and ignorant

For most people, all this business about witchcraft, the occult, and now exorcism, is so much amusing nonsense, a passing fad.

Not so with many of the more suggestible, however, Clergymen have been called to the aid of teenagers terrified after seeing the current film about devil possession. Church officials have been flooded with inquiries from persons who believe that they, or others, are possessed by demons. Inevitably, people have come forward with stories of how they underwent exorcism, even as theologians have found it necessary to warn that the movie distorts church teachings.

It would be funny if it were not in some cases quite tragic. It is also sad to be told that in this supposedly rational and scientific age, such a film is on the way to breaking all records. The Salem trials are not really that far behind us.

Those who feel that science has taken the "mystery" out of life (as if the universe were not still full of mysteries) should look into the story of the long battle between science and superstition.

At one time, waves of mass hysteria swept over Europe. These were not fads but deadly serious disturbances to the social fabric. Over the centuries, millions of human beings perished in purges of witches and devils. Those who dared claim that there were rational explanations for disease, earthquakes the motion of the planets, often did so at the peril of their lives.

It is only the slow and painful accretion of scientific knowledge over the centuries that enables us today to laugh at superstition. But science is reportedly out of favor among the young, and the universities, those bastions of rationalism, now offer them courses in astrology, witchcraft and the occult.

Will they now appoint resident exorcists?

A culture crunch?

The energy crunch we all know about. Comes now the suggestion that the world may also be facing a culture crunch, as it were.

Dr. Leslie A. White of the University of California at Santa Barbara, one of the world's leading cultural anthropologists, is the bearer of this solemn thought. He is credited with having introduced the energy theory of culture, which he sums up this way:

"Culture advances as the proportion of non-human energy to human energy increases."

In other words, when the discovery of a new energy source widens man's capacity to produce the luxuries as well as necessities of life, his civilization takes an upward turn. When that energy source peters out culture levels off onto a plateau until another new source of energy is found.

Dr. White cites several historic examples. During his first million years or so man depended almost entirely on his body's energy to produce the necessities. His civilization was simple, primitive, crude. Development of agriculture and domestication of animals provided a new energy source, with the resultant increase in population and the formation of nations.

It took only a few thousand years for such civilizations as those of Egypt, Mesopotamia, India, China and Mexico to rise, with a flourishing of the industrial, aesthetic and philosophic arts and the development of writing, mathematics, the calendar and currency.

This development lasted, as Dr. White points out, until about 1000 B.C. and then levelled off along with the energy availability. Not for another nearly three thousand years did a new surge come, generated by the fuel age.

If Dr. White's theories are correct, and history seems to prove that they are, we have reached another plateau. However, there is a difference. We already know many potential new sources of energy and have a fast-growing potential for developing them. Our plateau may be a smaller one than those of earlier times. It may be only generations instead of millenia until we experience a new upsurge in our culture.

Hopefully, that cultural growth will be a beneficent one.

A very liberal art

Energy crisis sidelight:

The "glamour graduates" these days are the petroleum engineers.

Marietta College in Ohio, the nation's only liberal arts college offering a degree in petroleum egineering, reports that the dozen or so petroleum engineers it turns out each year command the highest salaries of any graduates.

Members of the class of '74, for example, are being offering starting salaries of $12,000 to $13,700 a year for a B.S. degree in petroleum engineering, and the bid rate is going up by about $300 to $500 a year.

The year U.S. lost Europe

LONDON — The Year of Europe, which Secretary of State Henry Kissinger had promised for 1973, lies in shambles. It is more likely to go down in history as the year the United States lost its European allies.

For the Atlantic Alliance appears to be breaking apart. Its cornerstone, the historic British-American partnership, is crumbling.

European leaders are absolutely appalled at the scandals which have been swirling around President Nixon. He has been so weakened by Watergate that he has lost his influence with his Atlantic partners.

Privately, they hope he won't come to Europe in April to celebrate NATO's 25th anniversary. They are not at all eager to be pictured wining and dining the scandal-scarred Nixon. One prominent British diplomat quietly encouraged me to publish a hint that the President stay home.

Kissinger still has credibility with European leaders who, indeed, regard him as a diplomatic miracle worker. But they feel he has neglected Europe. In private conversations, British Prime Minister Edward Heath, has gone so far as to say that Kissinger, who was born in Europe, doesn't understand its politics.

Europe's formal diplomatic set also dislike Kissinger's freewheeling style. They complain that he doesn't consult them, that he treats them more like subordinates than partners.

British leaders, who for the sake of diplomatic niceties asked not to be named, told us that the special London-Washington relationship is breaking down. They attribute this to the inability of Kissinger and Heath to get on the same wavelength.

Kissinger also has trouble penetrating the frosty reserve of British Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home.

At the ambassadorial level, communication has been limited largely to routine messages. Kissinger always made his diplomatic overtures over the head of the recently departed British Ambassador Lord Cromer. A Foreign Office source described the Kissinger-Cromer relationship as "decidedly chilly."

But far more damaging to the British-American partnership has been the behavior of U.S. Ambassador Walter Annenberg, who has made himself the laughing stock of London by curtseying instead of bowing to the queen and by using painfully pretentious phrases in her presence. "He is a fool," summarized one British diplomat, "a disagreeable fool."

One casualty of the widening British-American rift may be the nuclear-sharing agreement. The suspicion is growing in London that Kissinger may be willing to end the nuclear collaboration as a bargaining point to solidify the Soviet-American detente.

This had led to quiet soundings about a possible British-French nuclear sharing program. Not without concern, Western Europe is awakening to the possibility that it may have to form its own independent nuclear force.

British sources also confirmed published reports that Kissinger angrily cancelled a plan to fly SR-71 spy planes out of a base in England during the Middle East fighting. The stories claimed that Kissinger was angered by Heath's demand that British knowledge of the operation be kept strictly secret.

According to our British sources, Heath merely insisted that the Israelis should not be shown the reconnaissance photos taken by the spy planes. In any event, Kissinger ordered the spy planes to bypass Britain which resulted in costly midair refueling operations and delayed for three days some of the intelligence on Soviet deliveries to Egypt and Syria.

An underlying cause of the Kissinger-Heath split has been the prime minister's emphasis on European unity at the expense of Atlantic unity. Having brought Britain into the Common Market, he has laid less stress upon the American partnership and more upon the European partnership.

The oil crisis increased the strain on the Atlantic alliance, of course, as the British and French scrambled to make their own separate deals with the Arab oil producers.

Kissinger has scarcely concealed his annoyance with the Atlantic allies, particularly the British. Increasingly, they are now showing their annoyance with him.

FOOTNOTE: The Foreign Office denied that relations with the United States have deteriorated. Similar denials have been issued by the State Department.

PAUL HARVEY

Unseen hazards in home workshop

Chicago's Mayor Richard Daley suffered unexplained inflammation of his eyes. It was discovered that he was allergic to epoxy glues which he'd been using in his home workshop. The epoxy on his hands was rubbed into his eyes and threatened his eyesight.

Now there is evidence that much of what we've been calling "arthritic pain" results from an allergy to paint thinners and cleaning solvents in common use in anyone's house.

If government were to eliminate every chemical to which anybody might be allergic, there would not be any chemicals left. There is nothing so harmless that somebody is not allergic to it. What's needed, then, is a better understanding of your own individual tolerances.

Since last spring some workers at a Columbus, Ohio, factory have suffered a strange nerve disease. They lose control of arm and leg muscles, become weak, begin limping, lose the grip in their hands.

Of 950 workers in this plant which makes vinyl material, 138 are allergic to something as yet unidentified. In garment factoriess, some workers are allergic to the formaldehyde used in making permanent-press fabrics.

Secretaries using duplicating machines may suffer skin inflammation if they are allergic to certain solvents.

You don't have to handle these chemicals; just breathing the vapors is injurious if you are sensitive.

Editor Art Schroeder of Model Airplane News, a model builder, was hospitalized with an unexplained illness so debilitating that he was near death before his vertigo and nausea were traced to resins used in his inadequately ventilated home workshop.

Workers in furniture factories, constantly exposed to paint solvents, suffer a much higher rate of arthritis.

A Dallas man is so hyperallergic to certain disinfectants and germicides that his chronic arthritis becomes crippling after exposure.

Dr. Horace Baldwin is founder of th the Allergy Foundation of America. He says 31 million Americans suffer from one or more significant allergies.

About 8.6 million Americans suffer from what's called "asthma." More than 4,000 people die each year from what's called "asthma" but likely results from an allergy.

More medical centers are developing allergy-immunology units, but Dr. Baldwin says the variables in human defense mechanism is something about which we know pitifully little.

Some workers who have worked with paints and adhesives for many years without discomfort are allergic to more recent ingredients.

Again the list is so long and individual reaction so varied that government cannot be expected to remove from the market all offensive substances. This leaves to each individual the necessity to determine his own sensitivities and to avoid those substances which he cannot tolerate.

Political inaccuracy

In your edition for Sunday Feb. 17 an article appears on page A-4 which contains a clear, serious, and politically deceptive inaccuracy.

That article calls Representative Victor Veysey "Republican incumbent in the 35th district." The fact is, of course, that the 35th district is a brand new district and therefore there cannot possibly be an incumbent in the district.

Rep. Veysey is an incumbent congressman but in a district far from Pomona or the 35th district. He is the incumbent congressman in the district that includes Imperial Valley where he has made his home for many years.

I know the Progress-Bulletin will want to correct this mistake, which I expect resulted from the handing to the paper of a prepared release from Mr. Veysey and then publishing it without review for accuracy. — Jerry Voorhis, former congressman, Claremont.

Gossip for today

It seems like only yesterday that we believed implicitly in our great American birthright which not only included Santa Claus, the Tooth Fairy and Mother's Apple Pie but also the Manifest Destiny of all American citizens.

Those were the typically American good old days when service stations were giving us trading stamps, dishes, glasses, cutlery, recipes, toy animals and bingo card game pay-offs to get us to buy more gasoline.—When the electric power companies had representatives going all over town ringing door bells and urging us to buy more and more electrical appliances. —When affluent home owners were building swimming pools instead of forming car pools. —When about the only place you could find a dimly lit nook or cranny was in a cocktail lounge.

When it was generally agreed that politics and religion should never be mixed, and wives of aspiring politicians stayed dutifully at home instead of going out on mysterious Mission Impossible pilgrimages. —When bakery owners gave customers a "bakers' dozen" instead of cashing in on a threatened shortage, like a baker in Miami is doing, by giving customers one roll of toilet paper free with every purchase of 6 Danish pastries.

Yes, those are the fond recollections this country's future grandparents will one day be recounting for the edification of their grandchildren when the little monsters start shouting: "Tell us a story Grandpa about the olden times when you patriotically helped solve the energy crisis by driving only 55 miles per hour even though the trucks were zooming past you at 65 and 70."

BRUCE BIOSSAT

Deflating the huffy doves

Among the established critics of the defense budget, not to mention some newsmen who cover this field, there is considerable sham and hypocrisy in discussing the impact of inflation on military costs.

Obviously it is perfectly proper to object on basic principle to large defense expenditures or to question the defense attitudes and policies which are given thrust by the proposed outlays or obligations of a particular budget.

But some critics and analysts talk as if defense costs, alone among all those in an inflation-ridden era, should somehow be thought of as insulated from and unaffected by trends which are not just national but worldwide.

To adopt this stance permits the critics to downgrade one whole area of justifications for defense increases, even as they focus their hardest attention on the always easy target — the highly visible planned expenditures for spectacular new weaponry.

One thing flowing from this is that anything the government says about the workings of inflation upon defense charges is quickly tarred with skeptical rejoinders from attackers using phrases like "the administration claims that, etc."

Yet proposed outlays for new weapons development and procurement are treated as if they are to be made in goldbacked dollars of the pre-Franklin D. Roosevelt era.

As an example. Pentagon budget explainers, who often admittedly have the handicap of sounding like programmed robot accountants, made the quite legitimate point that if the highest World War II arms budget were cast in current dollars (adjusted for intervening inflation), it would surpass $300 billion.

It is a fair way of saying that the World War II top of $81 billion plus should not be compared with new proposals which, with some leftover spending from fiscal 1974, would bring fiscal 1975 spending for defense to somewhere around $87 billion.

To treat the inflation adjustment with scorn is to border on the absurd. In World War II we had 12 million men under arms and were fighting a two-front conflict, had a navy battling in two oceans, and a strategic and tactical air fleet of immense numbers (nearly 100,000 aircraft were extant or projected at a late war stage.)

Can any responsible judge contend that such a force today would not cost three to four times $81 billion to field on the actual combat basis then existing? What point, then, in pretending that $87 billion for 1975 is a "record"?

Today we're down to an army of 2.1 million men from a fairly recent 3.6 million, a Navy of 500 vessels against a not too remote 900-plus, far fewer tactical air wings and a strategic force which, while highly important, is small.

Congressional critics brush quickly past the painful fact that Congress itself built inflation into the defense budget by locking manpower pay scales to cost of living.

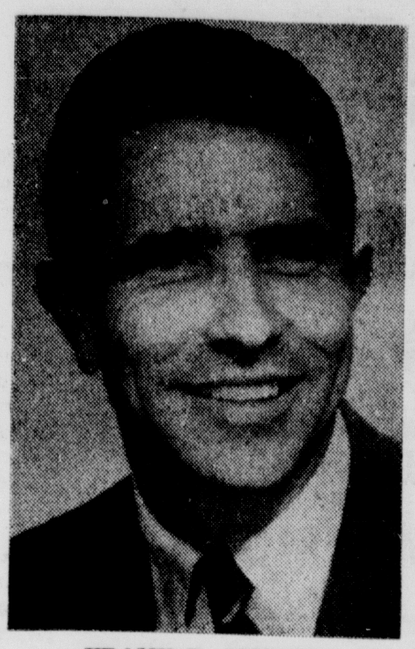

As for weapons, there's absolutely no doubt we today are deploying, planning and building systems of far greater sophistication and complexity — and thus higher cost — than their World War II counterparts. The costly realm of nuclear rockets of course did not then exist.

But in weaponry, too, inflation is a huge charge. "Cost over-runs" are not just the folly of weapons builders and planners, any more than they are in home-building or other civilian endeavors. It is hypocrisy to pretend they are.

MIKE MORALES

La Verne will hold first election for Mayor March 5

By BOB NAGEY

LA VERNE — For the first time in the history of the city, La Verne voters will go to the polls March 5 to elect their mayor.

The importance of that race overshadows the contest for two council seats, one of which is wide open because of the retirement of Councilman Jack Russi.

There are three candidates for the mayor's seat, and three candidates for the two council positions.

In the mayoral race, Mike Morales, a conservative peacemaker who has frequently cast the deciding vote on the council, will try to hold the job bestowed on him two years ago by the council.

He's opposed by Councilman Harrison Sanborn, an aggressive, outspoken business executive, and Mrs. Danita Peterson, a tiny homemaker who is running as a protest against "the establishment", which she says controls the present council.

In the council race, soft-spoken Frank Johnson, who was born in San Dimas and has spent 14 of his 39 years in public service, seeks four more years.

He is opposed by D. Allan Mackay, another quiet public service minded candidate, and Mrs. Carlina Griffiths, who wants to bring a woman's point of view to the decision-making body of the city.

Mike Morales

Morales feels he has proven that despite his Mexican-American heritage he has been equally responsive to all segments of the community as mayor of the city during the past two years.

As a result, he feels, his years have been a time of progress, particularly progress of quality, and cooperation in cementing relations with other organizations within and outside the city.

That is why he wants to run for the position in the city's first public mayoral election. He thinks he can do an even better job in the years ahead.

"There is much work left," he says. "We need devoted, experienced men."

The father of five children, Morales is now completing his 12th year on the City Council. He also served six years on the Planning Commission before winning a seat on the council. He has lived in La Verne since 1938.

He feels that the energy crunch will create a crisis in La Verne, as in other parts of the nation, and "this is no time to change leadership."

Morales was the last mayor elected by the City Council. Under a new ordinance, the next mayor will be elected by the people at the polls. The ordinance calls for a two-year term.

Harrison Sanborn

Sanborn says he is running for mayor because the city needs a man who will "provide leadership and dedication to the office and who understands the problems of its citizens."

He did not state outright that he felt the incumbent mayor was not such a man but he implied that Morales is not forceful enough to be effective.

The 52-year-old business executive feels the city needs a mayor "who has the courage to speak out and voice his views, based on knowledge of the subject. The mayor should be a man who will seek the involvement of all of the citizens from all areas of the community in finding a solution in the decision-making process of the city."

A tireless worker who frequently buries himself in back files to get the information he needs, and a convincing speaker, Sanborn firmly believes that local government is the "most important level of government because it is the one closest to the people."

He came to the city 16 years ago and has been on the council for the past six years. Currently he is serving as vice mayor.

Danita Peterson

Mrs. Peterson, a 31-year-old portrait painter and homemaker, says she is running for mayor because she is fed up with the way the City Council has ignored the "little people."

"Some of the present city councilmen seem to want to protect the big investors regardless of what it does to our taxes," she contends. "But the little guy, he works his whole life to pay for his home. He should be protected also. I feel the council has failed to do so."

The diminutive blonde council critic—she's 4 feet 9 inches tall—says she is not against progress except when it "starts costing more and more."

"The recent park bond issue was a good example. Most of our city leaders tried pushing it onto the tax payers. I fought against it. I am a fighter and I say what I think; I think we need a new mayor and a council that will represent the people.

She said the people "need to know what's going on and they will, if I'm mayor; also if a problem comes up, I will solve it right then, and not let it go for two years or solve it just before election time."

Mrs. Peterson's husband, Cleo, is a welder. They and their two daughters live at 1429 Third St. Mrs. Peterson was born in Alhambra and lived in Claremont before moving to La Verne five years ago.

Frank R. Johnson

Johnson wants to serve another term on the City Council because he has "a genuine interest" in serving his community and a "personal interest" in accepting responsibility.

"The people in La Verne have encouraged me to run again," he said. "I feel I have their confidence."

Johnson, at 39, is the youngest member of the council with the longest service record. His years of service include five years as mayor. He also served two years as a member of the Planning Commission before his election to the council.

"Despite my years in office, I am still at the age and outlook where I feel I can represent both the younger and the older adults," he said.

Johnson reflected that during his public life, he has noticed a change in the attitude and thinking of the community.

"Whereas we seemed preoccupied in the past with quantity development in order to keep up with the growth of the surrounding communities, we are now more interested in having quality development and being selective. Attitudes have changed because of the prevailing concern about our environment."

"I am interested in preserving the character and uniqueness of La Verne as much as possible because I hear more and more concern being expressed by citizens at council meetings that they like La Verne the way it is, and they want to keep it that way. I am dedicated to preserving a friendly, balanced community, such as the one we have here today."

Carlina Griffiths

Mrs. Griffiths feels La Verne needs a "good, strong plan of action" for the future, and that once the council adopts such a plan, it should "stick to it."

"The problem has been," she explains, "that the council has not really come up with a good workable plan and the council has failed to be consistent in its action even within the plan it has adopted."

Mrs. Griffiths would like to strengthen and modify that plan to provide for the purchase of more open space, "while we still have some. Other cities already have run out of land."

The mother of four children and a resident of La Verne for the past eight years, Mrs. Griffiths has worked with many youth groups in the past. She was born in Rodeo, grew up in Orange County and received her bachelor's degree from Mt. St. Mary's College in West Los Angeles.

She said her main qualification is that she is an interested citizen with the time, ability and the integrity to devote to the problems of the community.

"I am completely independent of any special interest groups, I do not own any property in this city except my home, and neither my husband nor I have any business affiliations," she declared.

She and her family reside at 1050 Canyon View Drive.

D. Allan Mackay

D. Allan Mackay, who was an unsuccessful City Council candidate four years ago, feels he has a much better chance this time.

With the assistance of those who defeated him in 1970, he has gotten involved in a lot of community work and now he feels he is ready for problem solving on the council level.

"I was chairman of the advisory committee that helped put over the water bond issue in 1970 by a margin of more than 8 to 1," he recalls. "Then I was named to the Planning Commission — I was its chairman for a year — where we completed an amended general plan for the city."

He said he seeks the council post to implement the objectives of the general plan, particularly the development of the north side as a balanced residential community; an orderly development of the entire city including business and industry; a well-planned traffic pattern throughout the community; and the improvement of communication between the council and its commissions.

Mackay, 58, is a native of Salt Lake City, who was reared and educated in California. He lived in Pomona for a short time in 1936 and then was transferred by the Pomona Pump Co. to St. Louis. He returned 30 years later to La Verne to his present position as manager of personnel and industrial relations for Johnston Pump Co. in Glendora.

He feels that his 35 years of experience in administration will be an asset on the council. He and his wife, Edyth, live at 1605 Victoria Place.

Rattles & straws

Other side of the coin

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

It was recently posited in this column that what the Pomona Valley could jolly well do with is a good old-fashioned English club where hail-fellows-well-met could foregather and seek surcease from the madding world over a tankard of ale, and where the butler answered the phone with, "Madame, no one's husband is EVER here."

Comes now a chirpy missive from an attractive co-worker giving the other side of the coin.

"Who REALLY needs and deserves an escape from house and family?" she writes. "I suggest that the woman who spends the day tilting with shopping carts, maneuvering laundry baskets, washing dirty faces (several times apiece), settling quarrels, picking up, cleaning and cooking ('My wife will never work'), all to the tune of kiddie shows on TV (how else do you keep the kids in one place long enough to clean up the place they were last?) is the one who deserves a club.

"A club where the carpet pile is lush and smooth — vacuumed by someone else. Where one can sit down to a delicious meal without cooking, serving, clearing up or worrying that one of the kids will do something humiliating. Where no shrill voices shriek for Mommy and no sticky fingerprints need to be cleaned off all that panelling. Where china is washed, silver and crystal polished, new candles lit, flowers kept fresh, furniture dusted — all by someone else.

"Mrs. Devereaux, who can eat anything and not gain weight, is never seated within the viewing range of Mrs. Johnson, who is on a perpetual diet.

"Desserts are both delicious and calorie free. Newspapers are folded neatly by one's favorite chair. And phone calls from children, husbands, mothers and mothers-in-law are all answered, 'Madame is out'."

Hm.

Cheryl has a point, of course. But if hubby is at his club and the wife is at hers, who's minding the store? Maybe we should have a club for the kids, too (not THAT kind — but, now that you mention it...)

A psyiologist once figured out that the average mother-of-three expends as much energy at her chores as a professional football player does in a game. Except that her game is 18 hours long and there are no timeouts.

A poll taken on a door-to-door canvass asked a housewife to list her day's activities for him. When she had run through the gruelling litany, he said. "What do you do in your spare time?" time?"

Looking him in the eye, she replied, "I go to the bathroom."

Bridge

She made only correct play

By Oswald James Jacoby

When Helen Sobel, probably the greatest women bridge player, first played at the Cavendish Club she was young, very attractive and couldn't have looked less like a bridge player.

Playing at four spades she drew trumps; laid down the ace of clubs to drop East's king and proceeded to wind up losing two clubs and one heart.

Her partner, a self-styled expert, said, "You played the clubs wrong, but you were lucky."

About a month later she made a similar successful play and drew the remark, "You'll never learn, will you?"

Helen's play was not only correct it was the only correct one. She needed two club tricks and the play of the ace insured this result against adverse distribution.

She would be sure of two club tricks against 3-2 breaks that might bother her.

Suppose that an honor failed to drop. She would continue by leading toward dummy's jack. If West held the king and queen he could only score two tricks.

Suppose East held them. West would show out. The jack would force one of the top honors. Later on the third club would be led from dummy and Helen's 10 would become a winner.

Beauty secrets a pack of lies

The beauty secrets of the stars never worked for me. I remember once Arlene Dahl suggested placing chilled cucumbers over each eye to relieve tension. My husband leaned over to kiss me hello, thought it was Daddy Warbucks and has had a twitch in his right eye ever since.

Dolores Del Rio, an older star who remains ageless throughout the years, said she retained her youth by never smiling and creating laugh lines. Any mother knows it's not the laugh lines that create valleys of facial erosion but the crying lines.

I suppose I should never have trusted Sophia Loren when she was quoted in a magazine article as saying, "All I am I owe to spaghetti." Just by looking at her I would never have thought that. Good posture? Maybe. A new baby? Possibly. A 16th of an inch padding? Oh, c'mon. But spaghetti!

It being my favorite food, her advice was easy to take. At least once a week, I would get out the big pot (not me, you fool, the other one) and begin the ritual that is called "Spaghetti sauce." Then I would toss up the salad, rich with oil, load the garlic bread with butter, reverently face Sophia's picture on the wall and say, "This one is for you, Sophia."

As the weeks went on, it became obvious my sand was not settling in the same proportions as Sophia. While she was built like a cut diamond, I was taking on the shape of a pyramid. But I persevered.

"Well, Sophia," jeered my husband. "How are you and Marcello Mastroianni making out?"

"I had it for lunch," I said.

"It's funny," he said, "I cannot remember Sophia walking around with a safety pin in her slacks."

"A sex symbol cannot be built in a day," I retaliated.

It wasn't until I began to think the "before" pictures in magazines looked great, that I realized the road to beauty is not paved with spaghetti. Sophia lied to me. It was all a hoax to make the women of America look like beasts while Sophia slithered her way through movie after movie. (Like having ugly bridesmaids so you'll look good.)

Taking off spaghetti, my friends, is like taking off no other food. You can run around the block and take off an eclair. You can do a few sit-ups and dissolve lobster dipped in butter, but spaghetti hits your hips, takes root and begins to grow again.

The other night as I sat nibbling on a piece of carrot, I watched Sophia in a movie with Cary Grant. I couldn't help but wonder . . .maybe if I left off the Parmesan.

15.8 miles of beach front

State park acquisitions proposed

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Reagan administration Wednesday recommended 94 land acquisitions for state parks under the $250 million state Park Bond Act, which will be Prop. 1 on the June 4 statewide ballot.

The recommendations were made at the first of two public meetings being conducted by the California Department of Parks and Recreations.

The proposed purchases include 15.8 miles of beach front along the California coast, ranging from 1.5 miles along the Pigmy Forest in Mendocino County to a 1.1 mile addition to South Carlsbad State Beach in San Diego County.

The acquisitions would use about $90 million of the bond monies. The remainder would be spent to develop existing state parks and to acquire property for fish and wildlife conservation.

The land purchases proposed by the Department of Parks and Recreation also include property for the Humboldt Redwoods State Park and the creation of a preservation area for the California poppy in Los Angeles County.

Another project would be to make the Leland Stanford Home, once the governor's mansion, part of the state park system.

The department has scheduled a Feb. 22 meeting at Santa Monica to give Southern Californians a chance to comment on the proposed acquisitions.

Preventive actions help lung problem

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently my 23-year-old son suffered from a collapsed lung (spontaneous pneumothorax), cause unknown. Can lungs be strengthened with a program of breathing exercises. What preventive measures can by taken to avoid a recurrence?

Dear Reader — Your son has a fairly uncommon medical problem, and there is some likelihood that he will have a recurrence.

A frequent cause of this problem is a small blisterlike formation on the surface of the lung called a "bleb." Remember that lung is a complex balloon. It is filled with tiny balloons or air sacs that all eventually connect together.

The blister or bleb connects with the series of tiny balloons. When the bleb breaks, there is a slow leak of air through the resulting hole. A small "blow out" occurs, and the lung deflates.

The air that leaks out of the broken bleb accumulates between the lung and the chest wall. As it builds up it causes the lung to collapse. Usually the collapse is not complete. The partially collapsed lung no longer functions effectively in respireation. While the lung is collapsed the bursted bleb starts bealing, forming a scar where the blister used to be. When the healing process is complete, the lung is air tight again. Nature has completed the "patch job." The air between the collapsed lung and the chest wall is absorbed and the lung expands, resuming its normal function.

One reason individuals who have one collapsed lung may have a recurrence is because there is often more than one bleb. Sometimes these small blebs can be seen by Xray. Usually they are located at the upper tip of the lung.

Preventive measures can be used in some instances. If there is an area at the tip of the lung with blebs, they can be removed surgically. Another technique is to surgically tack the lung to the chest wall all around so it can't collapse. Most cases do not require either of these operations. Most cases (but not all) can be teated by helping the lung expand, if and when it collapses.

The little blebs are usually there from birth. Because they are blister formations there are no exercises that will help the lungs in preventing a bleb from breaking. Other than the surgical approaches mentioned, there is not much you can do. I have discussed the typical mild problem. The situation can be more difficult. In persons with unusual occupations, for example pilots exposed to changes in air pressure from altitude, the situation is more important. When you go to altitude with air in the chest space, it can expand and cause pressure on the heart and circulation.

Most individuals who experience a collapsed lung live nomal lives and are otherwise healthy. It is only when, and if, a blowout occurs that they are in trouble.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of The Progress-Bulletin P.O. Box 1551 Radio City Station. New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on low blood sugar, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Blood Sugar" booklet.

Young drinkers will get cards

TAUNTON, England (UPI) — Landlords of 100 pubs in this somerset town have started issuing 1,000 special identity cards to young persons aged 18 and over who are entitled to drink in pubs.

The scheme is designed to beat the under-age drinking problem. The landlords say it is difficult to tell whether young persons have reached the legal age when they are permitted to drink in pubs.

Wild elephants will be herded by trained ones

KUALA LUMPUR (UPI) — Agriculture Minister Ghazali Jawi said that trained elephants will be imported from India to round up the herds of wild elephans that roam jungled areas opened to land development.

Chief Game Warden Mohamed Khan flew to India recently to discuss arrangements with Indian authorities the importing of such trained elephants.

The wild herds have caused destruction to many areas under development.

State consumer agency claims '73 good year

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Director John T. Kehoe of the state Department of Consumer Affairs recently said 1973 was a "good year for the California consumer.'

In the department's annual report to Gov. Ronald Reagan and the legislature, Kehoe said his agency not only increased its ability to handle consumer complaints with a "one stop" system but also stepped up its other responsibilities as "California's consumer advocates."

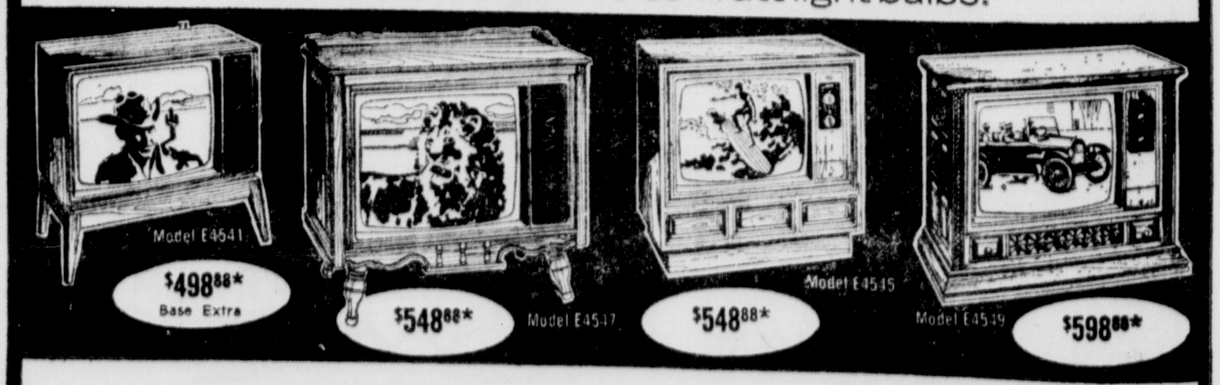

The report said the department received 81,959 complaints during the year, almost double the 42,210 complaints received the previous year. It said there were 133,676 inspections and investigations resulting in 55,364 disciplinary actions.

Deadline nearing for vet survivor benefit

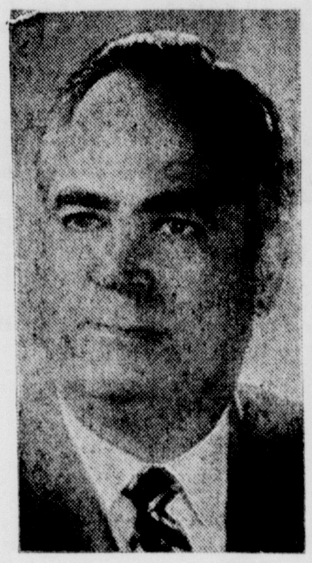

CHINO — March 20 is the deadline for all retired military personnel who have not enrolled in the "Survivor Benefit Plan," according to the Pomona Valley Fleet Reserve Association, Branch 211.

Any military retiree who left the service before September 1972 may take advantage of this extended enrollment period. The association says the original period was to have expired Sept. 20 of last year.

Under terms of the plan, a retiree can leave surviving dependents up to 55 per cent of the military retired pay being received at the time of death.

Provisions of the public law extending the deadline, the association points out, do not allow those who have previously enrolled to drop out of the plan, or to increase or decrease the base amount which they chose for their survivors' equity. No changes other than extension of the deadline have been made in the program.

The association, which last month elected Ray Watson of Ontario as secretary, meets the second Wednesday of every month at 8 p.m., at the American Legion Hall, 13350 Central Ave. Further information about the organization is available by writing to the group at 10282 Butterfield Place, Chino 91710.

Hanging baskets for indoor plants should be rotated periodically to allow for even plant growth all around, horticulturists say.

Runaways from camp to return

LA VERNE — Two runaways from a Ventura County Probation Department camp, caught inside a mobile home here during the weekend with a local youth, have been sent to Juvenile Hall for return to the camp, police reported.

The two boys, both 14, were runaways from Camp Gonzales, a probation department camp located near Calabasas. The two, both former residents at LeRoy Boys Home here, had come here to see the third youth, currently a resident of the home.

All three were seized inside a burglarized storage unit at the Fountains Mobile Home Park, 3530 Damien Ave., where they had been living on canned tuna. Police, called there by manager Donald A. Reiner, found the boys with a pellet pistol and pellet rifle.

The three were booked on burglary charges. Officers said they also planned to petition the third boy, 16 years old, to Juvenile Court.

Population up 7% at Youth Training School

CHINO — While there was a decrease in the number of youths under commitment to the California Youth Authority in 1973, the population at the Youth Training School here has increased nearly 7 per cent in the last year.

According to Allen F. Breed, director of the CYA, despite a slight increase in 1973 first commitments, the total CYA population—including those in institutions and on parole—declined during the year. There were 14,389 wards under commitment to the CYA on December 31, 1973, 10.7 per cent less than the 16,110 as of Dec. 31, 1972.

Robert McKibbon, superintendent of YTS, said that the total population of wards at YTS increased from 976 in 1972 to 1,050 in 1973. McKibbon said, "We now have nearly reached our budgeted capacity of 1,170 wards at this time." He said there are now 1,145 at YTS.

Breed noted that the total CYA institution population increased to 4,437 at the end of 1973, an 8.1 per cent gain over the all-time year end low of 4,105 in 1972. The year-end population increased more sharply than the year's admissions because the average length of stay in CYA institutions and camps was higher in 1973—11.6 months for males as compared to 11 months in 1972.

McKibbon agreed that the average length of stay has increased causing the higher population figure at YTS as well as in the entire YCA. McKibbon said that at YTS the average length of stay of the wards increased from 13.4 months to 14.6 months in 1973.

Farm experts say beef producers can increase their income significantly by marketing heavier weight calves, even if this means keeping calves on the farm for longer periods.

Photog faints at film; has punctured lung

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mark Reuben, a 195-pound photographer, said recently that the reason he has three broken ribs and a punctured lung is that he fainted at the motion picture, "The Exorcist."

Reuben, who lives in Mill Valley and stands 6-foot-2, said he became nauseous at the picture being shown in San Francisco and fell while walking toward the lobby.

A city ambulance took him to San Francisco General Hospital on Saturday for successful emergency surgery.

Legalized betting has side effects that are not beneficial to winners

By TOM TIEDE

NEW YORK (NEA) — When Fred Marshall won $200,000 in the Michigan state lottery last year the first thing he did was buy a Cadillac automobile equipped with a color television. The other day, as he was watching the TV in his garage, his Cadillac turned on to keep him warm, Marshall died of asphyziation. For him, says a neighbor, "playing the lottery was not a good thing."

The latter opinion, a macabre obituary for Fred Marshall, is being heard with increasing regularity in those parts of the nation where legalized gambling is grabbing hold. A lottery winner in Maryland recently had to move to another state because of pestering beggars. Proponents of casino building in New Jersey have been told to pass increased welfare appropriations along with roulette legislation "because a lot of people are going to go broke."

The most vociferous backlash to legalized gambling has been in New York where critics are charging that the state lottery and the Off Track Betting (OTB) systems are potential home breakers and life-wreckers. Ostensibly established to discourage illegal gambling in the state, opponents say the evidence is that lottery and OTB are in fact encouraging gambling of any kind — legal and illegal — "and a great social problem is developing."

Bigger than ever

Without doubt, gambling is bigger than ever in New York. OTB has been so successful that New York City's 120 betting shops are handling an average of $2.5 million in wagers a day. Among the customers, however, are the psychologically sick, people who wager their welfare money, and children looking for kicks.

The kids involved are the most shocking adverse result of OTB. State employes say that children as young as 14 and 15 have placed bets. One young man, confessing to a local newspaper, says he won $90 on one of his first bets and then became so infatuated with the calling he began placing 30 or more bets a week.

Other kids, even more tragic, are recognized by OTB employes as "stoopers," a pathetic group that prowls the floors of OTB parlors, bent over, searching for winning tickets that may have been discarded. One such stooper discovered was 10 years old.

Regardless of age, critical concern is for those bettors who may be being encouraged by the state to become compulsive gamblers. New York officials deny such encouragement, but in fact lottery and OTB advertising are extensive and compelling.

Lottery prospects are wooed by the chance of instant riches — "It has to happen to somebody — why not you!" As for OTB it asks citizens too skinny for the N.Y. Jets and too slow for the N.Y. Mets, to get with it and belong to the N.Y. Bets.

Critics charge that such advertising fosters "the lie of rainbow chasing" within the population. Monsignor Joseph Dunn, who is organizing a national group called the Council on Compulsive Gambling, says that the Madison Avenue treatment applied to gambling encourages a "false philosophy of life." Further, "it plays on the miseries and the inadequacies of some people." The states which operate liquor stores don't advertise them, says Msgr. Dunn, why then do they advertise their lotteries and $2 windows!

Angered, he adds: "What it does is provide a rationale for throwing money away. In many cases, these people haven't much money to throw away. In some cases the people throw it away even when they don't have it."

The latter wagerers, says Dunn, are often hooked on compulsive gambling. Like drug addicts or alcoholics they become so entangled in their lust they cannot escape. Dunn says there may be 10 million compulsive gamblers in America — more since legalized gambling has spread — and perhaps 40 million relatives are affected. As all addicts, their plight is desperate; a New York Times writer recently told of a compulsive who robbed graves for gambling money — he dug up, washed off and sold used coffins.

Phychological disease

The precise habits and motivations of compulsive gamblers are not known. Though possibly an older phenomenon than either the alcoholic or the addict, the compulsive is less visible, not usually so bedraggled, thus less sympathetic. Until recently, only the group Gamblers Anonymous was permanently into the subject.

Yet one study, that of a V.A. hospital physician, Robert Custer, indicates that compulsive gambling is a psychological disease which usually sets its roots quite early in life and is often precipitated by an individual's desire "to be somebody."

Dr. Custer believes, therefore, that the attractive advertising campaigns of legalized gambling may be worrisome. If a youngster thinks gambling is cool, he may be in trouble. And indeed many states (eight have lotteries) propagandize such gambling as cool.

Not unexpectedly, involved state officials deny that legalized gambling is encouraging compulsive gambling. A spokeswoman for the Michigan Lottery says "there's no talk at all about that here." An OTB official in New York admits a susceptible few may be injured by legal gambling — "But we don't stop licensing drivers because there are highway fatalities, do we?"

The fair argument is that people will gamble with or without state permission.

Still, even the proponents are saying the time has come to take a close look at the impact of legal gambling. Because nobody knows what the impact is. Legal gambling is growing almost without meaningful opposition — even churches are mum, because of their own bingo nights — and the public should at least know the consequences. As one compulsive puts it: "If people wanna bet, let 'em. But they gotta realize you don't win all the time."

Life savings go to thief

FAIR HAVEN, Mich. (UPI) — John Badovinac baked bread, cookies, cakes and doughtnuts for 18 hours a day, six days a week since the time he opened his small bakery here 12 years ago.

Every penny of his earnings was stuffed in a 10-gallon milk can hidden in a flour storage bin because Badovinac did not trust banks.

A thief who broke into the Fairhaven Bakery Monday and made off with Badovinac's $25,000 life savings has ruined the 52-year-old Baker's dreams of retirement—and just about destroyed his life.

"It was his whole life, and now it's gone," said Badovinac's daughter, Barbara. "This means another 10 years work for him."

Barbara, 22, said her parents had planned to retire to their modest cottage and "relax and plant a garden."

Young burglary suspect killed by shop owner

SANTA MONICA (UPI) — A teen-ager arrested twice for burglary in recent months died of a gunshot wound Tuesday when he was caught breaking into a pawnshop.

Police said shop owner Sam Feldman was working past midnight at the rear of his pawnshop when he heard the sound of breaking glass at the front and grabbed a gun to investigate.

Feldman told investigators he saw the youth carrying to his parked car three trays of jewelry later valued at $1,600.

The shop owner told police he then ordered the suspect to halt, but when he refused, Feldman said, he fired and hit the burglar in the chest.

The West Los Angeles youth was identified as Gregory M. Dewan, 19. He had been scheduled to appear in court this week on one of two recent charges of burglary.

Unique plan

Commercial-manufacturing zone under study in Walnut

WALNUT — Planning commissioners Wednesday night examined the facets of a unique use of the city's small area set aside for commercial-industrial developments.

Prompted by a 1970 state statute demanding compliance of zoning decisions with general plan designations, city planning advisor George Shindo drew the panel into discussion of a combination commercial-manufacturing zone entirely unlike any in the state.

Members of the commission probed Shindo's proposal skiptically, ultimately asking him to return with a draft for more concrete consideration. Although willing to consider the idea, and interested in its innovations, commissioners expressed doubt it is very different from present commercial zoning laws.

As the consultant on contract from the County of Los Angeles detailed his suggestion, the new "C-M" zone would entirely replace current M-1 and M-2 zoning statutes. He said that state law now requires general plans to be matched by zoning application, and that there is no area on the map of Walnut designated for manfacturing, while there is a commercial area in the plan.

However, since manufacturing offers a more stable tax base and employment sector, said Shindo, the city should be considering industrial development which will fit in with the community. To do so would require either the right zone or a general plan change.

Shindo suggested to the planners that Walnut develop a zone which will encourage industrial development while allowing commercial land uses in the same areas on a permit basis. Some cities have such a zone, he acknowledged, but the one to be written for Walnut would be a departure from those styles.

Among the effects of the zone would be to apply manufacturing zone standards to commercial areas, he pointed out. So, a grocery store built in a C-M zone would not be allowed to run its parking lot out to the street front, but would install 20 feet of landscaped area between the lot and the street, with another 30 feet minimum paved area from the landscaped area to the storefront.

Also, the zone would encourage light manufacturers to provide retail outlets at the factory. Shindo, in response to questioning, said the zone could be drafted to allow this use on a maximum area basis-say, 25 per cent of the firm's square-foot area-without a use permit.

Shindo cited factors which will prevent the city from ever attracting a regional shopping center, or major stores, as a further reason for seeking light industrial development. He also said the city could draw small factories to serve the larger firms doing business in the city of Industry — smaller companies that will not cause any form of pollution but will contribute materially to the city's tax base.

Regulation of development, he said, can prevent the area, generally between Carrey Road and Valley Boulevard, from becoming an unattractive conglomerate of operations.

As a rule, friendly pup makes best pet

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: Of these two puppies, brothers, one is friendly and runs toward you. Of course, my wife wants that one. I'm in favor of the other one who is indipendent and runs away from you. Which do you think would make the best dog? —P.F.

Dear P.F.: They might be equally fine dogs eventually. However, if a selction had to be made on the above basis only, the pup who comes toward you would, logically, make the best pet. People-oriented pooches do. Of course, either pup might change its ways and even now the one you favor may have other good traits worth considering. You could eliminate any doubt as to the outcome by picking both puppies.

DEAR DR. MILER: All of Fluffy s kittens but one have found good homes. We think. We know Taggy has a good home, he's right here with his Mama. She weaned him weeks ago but still loves him—most of the time. It's my understanding that as long as he is with his mother he is protected and won't need those distemper shots. Will this mean Taggy is free from the needle for as long as she lives?

Dear R.T.: Unfortunately, it takes more than mother love or protection to shield a kitten from feline distemper. It isn't her apron strings or presence which protects her kittens, it's the protective substances carried in her milk. Once Taggy stopped nursing, he began to lose this temporary immunity and is at this point as susceptible to distemper as if Mama weren't by his side. Trying to keep Taggy "safe" from the needle means keeping him in daily deadly jeopardy. He should be vaccinated at once. (You will find that needle doesn't bother him nearly as much as the thought of it bothers you.)

DEAR DR. MILLER: Henny, my young son's pet chicken, was found dead n the garage next door. Our new neighbor denisd even knowing the bird was in there. She said the bird must have died from carbon monoxide poisoning when her husband started his car. Does that sound right to you? —F.A.

Dear R.A.: I can see why you might suspect fowl play. If her husband is in the habit of idling the car in a closed garage every morning he's lucky not to be as dead as Henny by this time. (Carbon monoxide kills people, too.) Brids are highly susceptible. Still, Henny's demise could well have a different explanation and one that your neighbors are completely unaware of.

Lockheed has 3rd straight year in black

BURBANK, Calif. (UPI) — Lockheed Aircraft Corp., the nation's largest defense contractor, has announced a net profit of $16.8 million for 1973, its third consecutive year in the black.

That was a slight increase over the 1972 profit of $16.2 million.

All Lockheed programs were profitable except for the L1011 Tristar wide-bodied jetliner and shipbuilding, said chairman Daniel J. Haughton.

Sales rose 11 per cent to $2.76 billion, he said, with earnings increasing from $1.43 per share to $1.48.

Lockheed said that 70 per cent of the contracts received in 1973 were from U.S. government agencies, mostly for missile, space, propulsion and electronic goods.

The corporate debt totalled $600 million, Haughton said, up from $530 million at the end of 1972. He said there was "substantial progress" in arranging for up to $75 million in new loans that may be necessary for the Tristar program. But he said the demand for Tristars should continue into the 1980s, and the plane will eventually be profitable.

Somebody 'up there' likes Oregon couple

NEWPORT, Ore. (UPI) — Mr. and Mrs. Ted Allen, owners of a local motel, went beachcombing recently searching for Japanese floats.

They found a 50-gallon drum of gasoline which was nearly full.

"God is taking care of us," said Mrs. Allen. "He knows how I hate to wait in line."

Panama Canal

The lock chambers of the Panama Canal hold about 8,800,000 cubic feet of water each, or about 65,000 gallons. Every time a ship makes a complete transit, about 52 millions of fresh water are spilled into the sea.

Lakers still losing

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Losers of seven of their last eight games and seven straight on the road, the Los Angeles Lakers returned home today in second place in the NBA's Pacific Division.

The Lakers, two games behind the Golden State Warriors, fell to last-quarter rallies in both their road games this week, losing to Kansas City-Omaha 92-86 Tuesday night and to Detroit 112-110 on Wednesday.

The Lakers blew a chance to pick up a game on the Warriors, who lost Wednesday night, when Bob Lanier paced a fourth-quarter Piston rally. Lanier scored 16 of his 29 points in the period, hitting 6-of-8 shots, as Detroit took control after trailing 81-80 going into the period.

Willie Norwood added 21 points for Detroit, which is on its way to a playoff berth for the first time since the 1967-68 season. Dave Bing scored 18 and John Mengelt added 17.

Jim Price scored 31 for Los Angeles, picking up the slack for cold-shooting Gail Goodrich, who scored only 12. Connie Hawkins had 15 points and Happy Hairston added 12.

The win was Detroit's 20th straight against Pacific Division competition, improving the Pistons record to 41-22. The Lakers are now three games over .500 for the season, 32-29.

Los Angeles returns to action here Friday night against the Philadelphia 76ers. The Lakers travel to Seattle Saturday night and return home Sunday to host Chicago.

Referees Don Murphy and Paul Mihalik called 76 personals plus one technical as five players fouled out of the bruising Piston-Laker contest. However, the 76 infractions fell far short of the NBA regulation one game record of 97 called in 1953 in a game between New York and Syracuse.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Capital beat Portland 116-101, Houston whipped Philadelphia 115-98 and Milwaukee topped Atlanta 110-94.

Kings 116 Warriors 97

Jimmy Walker and Don Kojis combined for 52 points to power Kansas City-Omaha past Golden State. Walker had 27 and Kojis 25 and Sam Lacy scored 20 and grabbed 19 rebounds. Despite the loss, the Warriors retained their two-game lead over the Lakers in the battle for the Pacific Division title.

Cazzie Russell led Golden State with 27 points while veteran Warrior Jeff Mullins, who finished with 22, became the 34th player in NBA history to pass the 12,000-point career scoring mark.

Bullets 116 Blazers 101

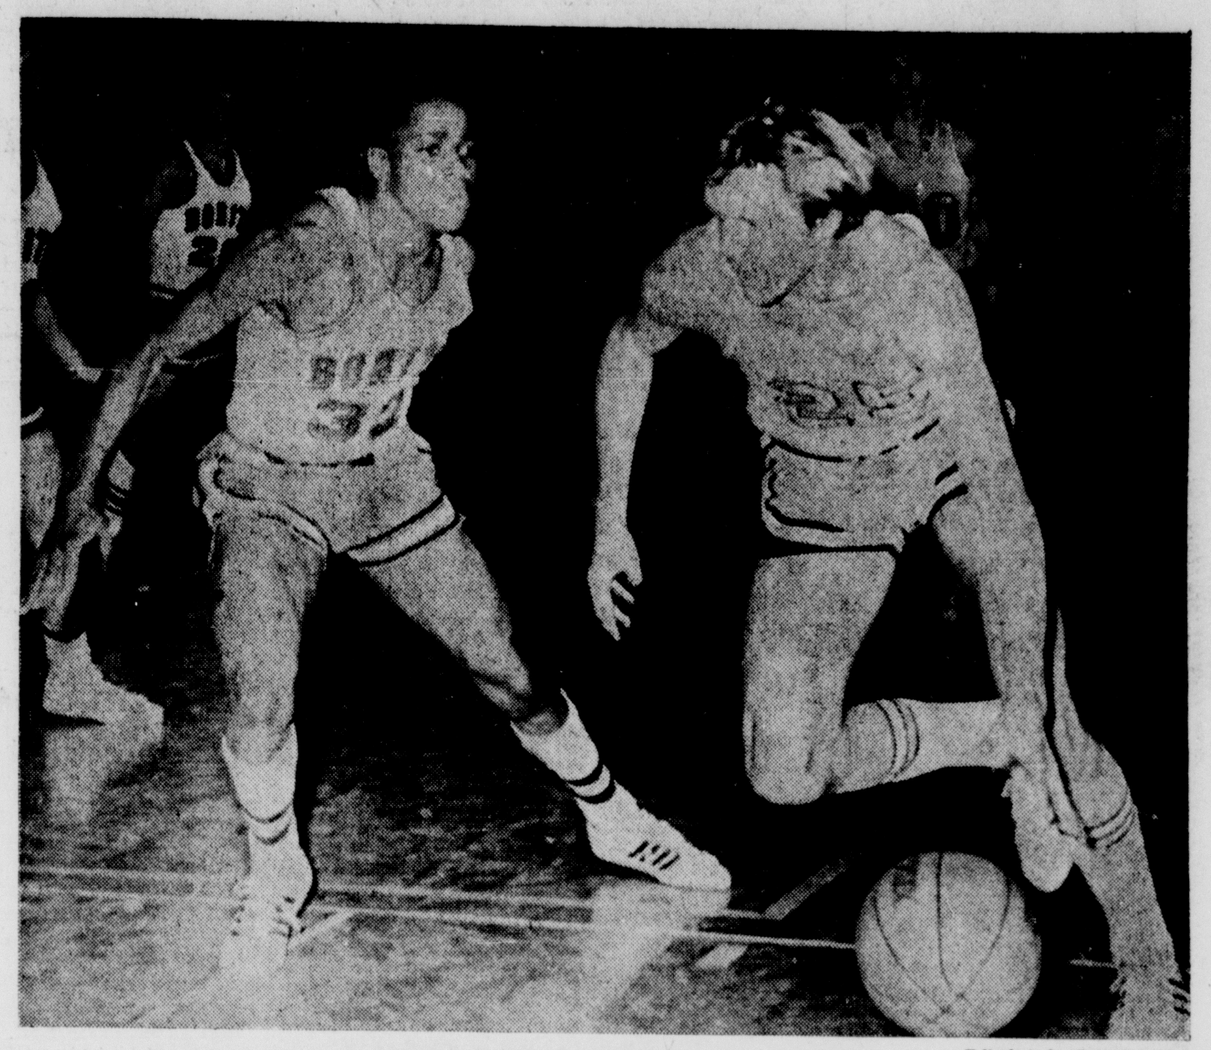

Kevin Porter scored a careerhigh 28 points while Mike Riordan and Elvin Hayes accounted for 27 apiece for Capital in its triumph over Portland. The Bullets built a 100-74 lead early in the fourth quarter in streaking to their fifth straight win and ninth in their last 12 games.

Bucks 110 Hawks 94

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 12 points in the fourth quarter to break open a tight contest and lead Milwaukee over Atlanta. The Hawks trailed 7873 early in the fourth quarter when Abdul-Jabbar scored eight quick points to only two for Atlanta to give the Bucks an 86-75 lead. Abdul-Jabbar had 32 points to lead all scorers while Pete Maravich scored 28 for Atlanta.

CHRIST LOOKS FOR OPENING

Walnut High's Kirk Christ looks for an opening around Bonita's Leroy Johnson in Mustangs' easy 89-55 victory Wednesday afternoon. Walnut has compiled perfect 13-0 mark in Hacienda League play.

Walnut (24-2) builds cage record

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

WALNUT — What is there left for a high school basketball team that has won its league title . . . three games ahead of the second place team . . . and still has one game left on its regular season schedule, has a 15-game winning streak and is ranked second in the 2-A CIF polls?

One would think that the excitement and incentive would be missing, but Walnut High, lead by Kirk Christ's 30-point performance, shot 50 per cent from the field as a team Wednesday afternoon and made Bonita its 13th straight Hacienda League victim in an 89-55 rout.

"It's hard to play now," said Mustang head coach Bill Murray after the 34-point win. "Our defense was poor and our offense sputtered at times but we'll be ready for the CIF playoffs Tuesday."

Playing without the services of guard Marcelo Maurin (14.0 average) for the second straight game, Walnut (24-2 on the year) connected on 35 of 70 field goal attempts including a 10 of 18 performance in the first quarter and 11 of 21 in the third stanza.

The much smaller Bearcats, playing without their top player Harold Drake, shot just 38.6 per cent (23 of 58) and committed 23 turnovers.

Drake, the Pomona Valley's No. 4 scorer at 20.9 points a game, missed Wednesday's game after twisting an ankle in the first quarter of Friday's win over Gladstone.

Bonita coach Remi Tremblay said it's doubtful that the Hacienda League's No. 2 scorer at 17.5 points will be ready for Friday's season finale with Alta Loma at Bonita.

"We'll have to wait and see how the ankle is Friday. We don't want to take a chance. He's too good a baseball player and we don't want to risk further injury."

Christ hit on 13 of 22 shot attempts and added four of six free throw attempts in registering 30 points. It marked the seventh time this season the 6-5 forward has hit that figure or better, including a 41-point effort in Walnut's season opening rout of Bell Gardens.

The first team All-Pomona Valley and second team All-CIF performer was devastating in the third quarter when he amassed 17 points, hitting eight of 12 from the field, and grabbed nine of his game-high 16 rebounds. He also contributed four assists and three steals.

Walnut sprinted to a 10-2 lead before Bonita, now 4-9 in league and 6-16 overall, could get over the shock. The Mustangs ended the period with a 22-14 advantage as all five starters hit for at least four points.

The Mustangs had an eight-point advantage in the second period to take a 42-24 halftime lead. Lance Parrish tallied seven of his 13 points in the period and finished the game with 11 rebounds, six assists and two steals.

Steve Johnson, who finished with 22 points and nine caroms, accounted for 11 of Bonita's 12 second quarter points. It marked the sixth time this season, the Bearcats' second leading scorer at 14 points a game, has tallied 20 or better in a contest.

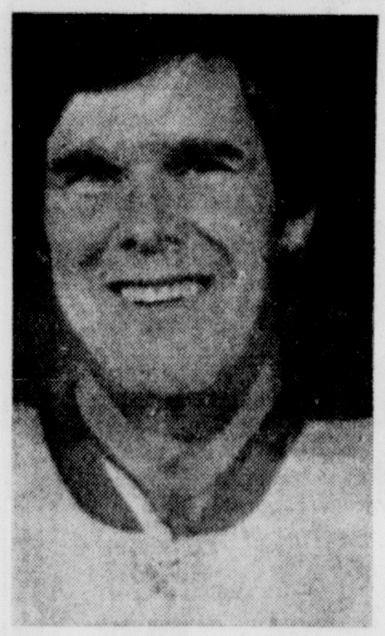

The best effort for the 6-0 sophomore forward was against Claremont when he tallied 26 markers.

Christ scored 17 of Walnut's 25 third quarter points as the hosts extended the lead to 67-41 after three periods.

Guard Steve Hines connected on four of eight attempts for eight of Bonita's 15 markers in the stanza. The 5-9 senior finished with 14 points to tie a season best effort.

Murray was pleased with the performance of his reserves who accounted for 22 fourth quarter points. Guard Kelley Bowlin had three of his seven points in that period, while forward Jerry Willett and Bill Dayhuff each added six points.

Starter Gary Case enjoyed a fine afternoon scoring seven points and contributing five assists and three steals.

TIM HORTON

Hockey player Horton killed in auto crash

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (UPI) — Veteran hockey defenseman Tim Horton of the Buffalo Sabres was killed early today when his sports car, going at a high rate of speed, went off the road and crashed.

Horton was returning from Toronto, where the Sabres played Wednesday night, to Buffalo, where they are scheduled to meet the Atlanta Flames tonight.

Provincial police said Horton, 44, was alone in a 1974 Porsche when it left the Queen Elizabeth Way and overturned several times, throwing him from the vehicle.

Police said the vehicle was spotted going at an "excessive speed" a short time before the crash. They said police were about to give chase when the crash occurred.

The accident occurred about 4:30 a.m., police said.

The veteran defenseman, who played most of his National Hockey League career with Toronto, was drafted by Buffalo in the 1972 expansion draft.

He broke into the NHL with Toronto in 1949-50, then was sent to Pittsburgh for the 1950-51 season when Pittsburgh was in the American Hockey League. Horton was recalled by the Maple Leafs during the 1951-52 season and was with them until 1970 when he was traded to the New York Rangers.

He was drafted by the Pittsburgh Penguins of the NHL in the intra-league draft in 1971 and was taken by Buffalo in the intra-league draft in 1972.

For the past two years Horton had been undecided about whether to continue hockey or retire. At the last minute prior to the 1973-74 season, he decided to play. He was a big asset for the Sabres and provided backline experience for the young team last season and they went on to their first Stanley Cup playoffs ever. He was named the team's most valuable player.

Wooden taking losses calmly

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — John Wooden, the epitome of a winner's winner, is taking it calmly.

Suddenly, his UCLA basketball dynasty appears to be ready to collapse. But the man they call Saint John and Wizard of Westwood is all smiles.

"Deep down," he said, "I don't feel as badly now as I did 12 or 13 years ago when we went up to Washington and lost two in a row. They had played in the LA Classic Tournament down here and they looked miserable. And we went up there and lost two games in a row to them. I felt absolutely miserable.

"I don't feel that way now. Maybe I'm more peaceful."

That was in 1962-63, the season before Wooden's Bruins began their incredible string of nine NCAA championships in 10 years.

Before Bill Walton's senior season, the Bruins were considered shoo-ins to win their eighth national crown in a row.

Then they had their 88-game NCAA record winning streak broken at Notre Dame last month. Last weekend they were shocked in Pacific-8 games at Oregon and Oregon State.

"I didn't even feel our game at Oregon was unusually rough the other night," Wooden remarked. "I wasn't ruffled at all.

"Last year I was. Ten years ago I would have been fighting mad." In his 26th year of coaching at Westwood, the 63-year-old czar of college basketball is keeping it all in perspective.

"I think," he sighed, "I'm just disappointed. Of course, it's a hard thing to say because we have won so much. But I would hope my overall feeling toward losing isn't any different because we have been winning.

"I hope from this point on, win or lose, it doesn't change either."

Wooden has had four perfect 30-0 seasons in the last 11 years. But, he pointed out, winning isn't a panacea.

"I've never had a team in which I didn't have a problem," he remarked. "I've always had problems of one nature or another and they're not all the same.

"You think because we've done so well that we wouldn't have had problems. Well ... that's just not the way it is.

"Generally speaking, I've had less problems when we haven't done so well. I think you'd find this to be generally true about most coaches. Most coaches have more problems with their better teams."

Dark: he's a better man

OAKLAND (UPI) — It's been an agonizing 2 ½ years for Alvin Dark, a time to sit back and reflect and hopefully collect himself.

"I think I am a better man today than I ever was," said the 52-year-old Dark Wednesday, minutes after Charlie Finley had introduced him at a news conference as the new manager (12th in 14 years) of the World Champion Oakland A's.

Dark, who has known both the joys and agonies of big league baseball in a career that spans nearly 30 years, was finding it hard to pick the right words, standing up there in the glare of television cameras and countless microphones.

"Obviously, I've had my personal problems," he went on as Finley, who can be very charming when he chooses, put a fatherly arm around the man he fired as manager seven years ago. "But I've gotten myself straightened out and I believe I can be a better manager than I ever was."

Dark, a religious man, divorced his first wife four years ago and then remarried. He had other personal problems as well but held up while working on the front half of a five-year contract as manager and general manager of the Cleveland Indians.

But 2½ years ago, the Indians, going nowhere, fired Dark and he went home to Miami. He's been trying to get a big league job ever since, not because he needed money, but just to be in the game.

When Finley and Dick Williams, who led the A's to World Championships the last two years, became enbroiled in a cross-country argument over whether Williams would serve out his remaining two years with Oakland or sign with the Yankees, Dark called Finley and asked to be considered for Williams' job.

"Even though we had our differences in 1967 (the year Finley fired Dark while the A's were based in Kansas City) we always were friendly and cordial to one another," Finley said by way of explanation.

"I had a few other names on my list as candidates, but in the end I decided to hire Alvin because he's the best baseball man around. He's the kind of manager my club needs and I know he and I will get along. He's a man of convictions and I like that."

The convictions Finley spoke off involve Dark's church work. In fact, Dark left a meeting of the Independent Baptist Church in Southern California to come to Oakland for Wednesday's announcement.

"I'm tickled to death to be back in baseball," Dark said. "I owe Mr. Finley a debt of gratitude for giving me a chance to lead a club such as his. This is a manager's dream and I'm hopeful of leading the team to another championship."

Neither Finley nor Dark cared much to talk about what happened in 1967 when Charlie fired Alvin over a player dispute during a flight. Reportedly, Dark stuck up for his players and that angered Finley, since he thought his manager's first allegiance was to the man who makes out his paycheck.

"I'm not going to comment on what happened seven years ago," Finley bristled, "and I'm sure Mr. Dark doesn't care to either. What both of us are interested in now is the present and the future. I think I hired a great baseball strategist and I'm sure he'll take us all the way this year."

Finley was asked if he would meddle into Dark's work and he bristled again.

"For a team to be successful," said the A's owner, "the manager and the general manager have to work together, Since I'm the general manager of this club as well as the owner, I expect to be talking quite often with my manager. And I would hope he would call me when he feels the need. That's only normal, isn't it?"

The catching up starts Saturday when Dark goes to Mesa, Ariz., to help open the A's' spring training camp.

Rangers visit Kings at Forum

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Kings, two points away from fourth place in the NHL West, host the New York Rangers here tonight.

The Kings will be out to snap a four-game losing streak which has left them two points behind the fourth-place Atlanta Flames. The Kings are 21-28-8 for 50 points, while Atlanta is 21-27-10 for 52. The Flames visit the Buffalo Sabres tonight.

Sharks 'bite' Whalers, end nine-game drought

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Los Angeles Sharks' Coach Terry Slater, who had said last week his team "passed the puck like a bunch of girls," was in better spirits Wednesday night.

His team had just manhandled the powerful New England Whalers in a 4-2 victory, breaking out of a club record nine-game losing streak.

"We played position hockey," he said. "That's what you have to play against New England. I'm gonna have a beer to get the ulcer out of my stomach."

The Sharks, last in the World Hockey Association's West Division, got two goals from Alton White to defeat the Whalers, who lead the WHA East.

White deflected a shot by Gerry Odrowski late in the first period to give the hustling Sharks the lead. After Don Blackburn had tied it for New England with a power play score early in the second period, newly-acquired Bobby Whitlock put Los Angeles ahead for good with a short shot from in front of the net.

Whitlock came to the Sharks Wednesday in a trade which sent Jim Watson and Don Gordon to the Chicago Cougars.

"Whitlock is a helluva hockey player," Slater said, "but they all played great tonight."

Rookie Reg Thomas gave the Sharks a 3-1 lead late in the middle period, picking up the rebound of a shot by Bill Young and scoring from 10 feet out. White got his seventh goal of the season early in the final period, picking up a loose puck in front of the net and slamming it past goalie Al Smith.

The win gives the Sharks a 21-38-0 record for 42 points, four less tan fifth-place Vancouver in the WHA West. New England is now 32-25-2 for 66 points, tied with Toronto for the East leadership.

The Sharks are idle until Sunday, when they host Edmonton. New England, four games into a six-game road trip, visits Chicago Saturday.

No. Carolina State likes No. 1 feeling

By United Press International

Being No. 1 in the nation apparently agrees with David Thompson and the North Carolina State Wolfpack.

The Pack, playing its first game since taking over the No. 1 slot from UCLA this week, crushed Duke 113-87 Wednesday night behind an awesome 40-point performance by Thompson.

Thompson, a 6-foot-4 junior, hit 19 points in the first half and exploded for 21 more in the second as N.C. State boosted its record to 21-1. Tom Burleson, the 7-4, center, added 17 points.

Duke Coach Neill McGeachy was awestruck afterward.

"State's the best team we've played and (David Thompson may be the best player in the nation," said McGeachy, whose club has also lost to second-ranked Notre Dame.

"David was particularly quick and sharp and seemed to be motivated," said Wolfpack Coach Norman Sloan. "We're playing better all the time and the No. 1 ranking may have motivated us."

Thompson hit 16 of his 24 shots, was 8-for-10 from the foul line and pulled down 14 rebounds.

In other games involving ranked clubs, North Carolina (4) ripped Miami of Ohio 83-69, Maryland (6) bombed Duquesne 98-72, Pittsburgh (8) downed Temple 56-49 and South Carolina (16) overpowered Virginia Tech 82-71.

Bobby Jones had a career-high 29 points to lead North Carolina past Miami, the Tar Heels' 19th win in 22 games, and Len Elmore had 26 points and 17 rebounds and John Lucas hit 27 points as Maryland beat Duquesne.

Billy Knight and Lew Hill scored 12 points each as Pitt overcame slowdown tactics to beat Temple and run its winning streak to 22 games while Brian Winters hit 20 of his 21 points in the first half to lead South Carolina past Virginia Tech and into solid contention for an NCAA at-large bid.

Elsewhere, Lloyd Batts had 21 points as Cincinnati, also looking for a post-season berth, downed Xavier 68-56 and Syracuse raced past Niagara 80-60 to run its record to 17-6.

The West Coast Athletic Conference starts a key round of play tonight when Loyola calls on Santa Clara.

Co-leader USF hosts Loyola Friday night while Seatle, also at 9-1, is at Nevada Reno. On Saturday, USF faces Pepperdine after Seattle has gone into the pit at Nevada Las Vegas for an afternoon encounter.

While USF could easily emerge from the weekend one game up on the Chiefs, the Dons must play at Seattle Feb. 28.

Seattle backcourt star Frank Oleynick, meanwhile, continues to lead the conference in scoring with a 25.9 average.

In the PCAA, mighty Long Beach State is waltzing to victory but the key struggle here is for second and the NCAA bid in place of the ineligible 49ers. Los Angeles State and UC Santa Barbara share 5-2 records when games with the 49ers are omitted and UOP is 4-3. That makes tonight's Los Angeles State at UOP game a crucial while UC Santa Barbara is at home to San Diego State. San Jose State is at Fresno State in a battle of also-rans.

Mounties go out winning

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

WALNUT — Mt. San Antonio College ended a forgettable season memorably Wednesday night with a nervous 65-64 win over Fullerton.

While the game had little effect on the top of the standings, it did move into a tie for fourth place in the South Coast Conference with Fullerton which dipped to 3-7 and 14-14 overall. Santa Ana, in the meantime, claimed it second successive South Coast title with a 92-77 win over Orange Coast.

In was only the Mounties' ninth victory in 28 games, the poorest season in the 15-year tenure of head coach Gene Victor.

"It wasn't too artistic," he said of the win," but it's a nice way to end the season."

Artistic it wasn't. But the Mounties have rarely been artistic in the 1974 campaign.

They had all but iced it Wednesday night with a seven-point lead with 5:18 to play. But in less than minute Fullerton cut the margin to a single point, 60-59, and it was nail biting time the rest of the way.

The Mounties pulled into a three-point lead as the last minute ticked away, but the Hornets had apparently tied it at 64--all with 0:05 remaining of a driving layup by forward Bob Holgate.

A three-second violation nullified the bucket, however and a technical foul on Mike Farra sent Roger Borg to the free throw line.

Borg's toss was good, and the Mounties just watched as guard Mike Cannon scored the final points for Fullerton on a lay-up in the last second.

Hornet center Jeff Hutton led the scoring for both teams with 20 points. Holgate joined MSAC center Gary Nash with 18 points, and Borg was next for the Mounties with 15.

Nash, who leads the conferenc in rebounding with a 14.3 average, upped that figure by pulling down 17-12 of which came in the final 20 minutes after Fullerton took a 34-28 lead into the dressing room at halftime. Nash also canned 10 of his 18 points in the second half.

Borg and forward Gary Melugin, who came off the bench to pop for seven points, are the only Mountie scorers eligible to return next season.

Stags open season on San Diego trip

SAN DIEGO — Claremont-Mudd's baseball team opens the 1974 season at Point Loma College Friday afternoon.

The Stags play a single game at 3 p.m. Friday. The first doubleheader is slated Saturday when the Stags and Crusaders play two beginning at noon.

"We'll be hard pressed to come up with a starting lineup," said coach Bill Arce. "We lost some outstanding seniors. But we have good depth and balance. I think we can best be described as being in a building year."

Last year the Stags posted a 12-6 in conference play and were 26-16 overall.

Gone from that squad are third baseman Bill Mills, who batted .384 and was an All-District selection; outfielder Wil Wilkins, who hit .321 and made All- SCIAC; first baseman Mickey Robinson; designated hitter Bill Vasek, catchers Jim Mullowney and Bob Trujillo; and pitcher Jeff Westphalen who posted a 1.94 earned run average.

"We'll have a sophomore catching with Tom Condon and Greg Thompson having the edge at this point," said Arce. "Steve Lopez, a junior, is at first with two sophomores, Mark Wilmon from Bonita and Jim Wind battling for the job.

"Gary Burger at short and Todd Bower at second are being hard pressed by two sophomores, Andy Roundtree (ss) and Bob Turek (2b). Third base is a tossup between juniors Bob Ingram and Jaime O'Patrry."

O'Patrny was one of three sophomore quarterbacks on coach John Zinda's football team last fall.

Arce has four players vieing for three starting outfield berths. They are Brad Koppel from Pomona High, Wynn Moore, footballer John Begerow, and team captain Gary Ratet.

Again this year the Stags figure to have strong pitching. Returning from last year are starters Mike Bruno, Brad Rehn, and Ed Matta.

Bruno won the pitching trophy last year awarded by the Progress-Bulletin by leading all pitchers among Pomona Valley four year colleges with a 1.51 earned run average.

San Dimas trims Braves, 65-64

Royal Oak, San Dimas and Sierra Vista highs all recorded victories in their next-to-last league games of the year Wednesday afternoon in Hacienda League basketball action.

Royal Oak's Rory Pernot hit a 20-footer with four seconds left to give the Romans a 46-44 overtime win over Gladstone.

Sierra Vista's Paul McKay gave the Dons a 56-54 last second win over Ontario.

With the score tied 54-54, Bill Barker apparently put the Jaguars ahead, 56-54, on a bucket with 20 seconds left but a three-second violation nullified the hoop.

Then with four seconds left, McKay scored to give S.V. the win and remain alive in the battle for second place and a possible CIF playoff berth. Ontario was led by Joe Jefferson (18, Paul Gonzales (16) and Bill Flores with 10 points.

The Dons (9-4) trail the Romans (10-3) with the two teams meeting Friday night.

In the other HL contest, San Dimas took advantage of 23 fourth quarter Alta Loma fouls to defeat the Braves 65-54.

Bobby Childress paced the Saints with 20 points, 16 in the second half, while Jim Johnson added 18 markers.

An encouragement for coach Bob Espinoza was the play of forward Steve Brahs, who grabbed 11 rebounds and tallied six points in one of his better outings of the year.

Roger Gubichuck had 16 points for Alta Loma.

Raiders trip M.L. leader Azusa, 53-47

ROWLAND — It's a little late in the season for it, but Rowland High is on a hot streak anyway.

The Raiders picked up their third consecutive Montview League victory Wednesday, and did it in a big way. Now in a tie for sixth place in the Montview standings, Rowland picked off the league-leading Azusa Aztecs, 53-47.

After trailing by only one point at halftime, 23-22, the Raiders took the lead early in the third period and never gave it up. Rowland forward Robert Malave, who was the Pomona Valley's third leading scorer going into this week's action with a 20.9 scoring average, potted 10 of his 26 points in the fourth period to keep the Raiders out in front.

Leos survive scoring droughts

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

CLAREMONT — La Verne College overcame a long scoring drought in each half Wednesday night to record its fifth straight victory.

In a low-scoring, close game, the Leopards came back after falling behind 39-34 and slipped by Pomona-Pitzer, 45-40 in Pomona Gym.

The win gives the Leos a 7-3 conference record. Overall they are now 10-13. Pomona-Pitzer is now 3-7 in conference play and 9-12 overall.

La Verne remain a game behind second-place Redlands while Pomona-Pitzer remains deadlocked for fifth with Claremont-Mudd. Redlands defeated the Stags 73-59 at Redlands.

La Verne jumped off to a 10-2 lead as the Sagehens didn't score until Manuel Ramos connected 4:37 into the game. The 'Hens not only weren't scoring, they weren't getting off many shots. . .only seven in the first 8:08 of play.

The Leopards were leading by 11 points 18-7, when Ken Lipkin was charged with his third foul with 7:45 left in the half. After Lipkin was taken out, the Leos suddenly lost momentum.

They went five and a half minutes without scoring. Meanwhile the 'Hens scored 10 unanswered points to draw within one, 18-17, before Rockwood scored to make it 20-17. The Leos managed to stay ahead and take a one-point lead, 22-21, into the dressing room.

Groff Northrop's two free throws put the Sagehens ahead for the first time, 23-22, in the second half. The teams exchanged leads until Bill Rockwood's three pointer knotted the score 31-31.

Pomona-Pitzer slowly pulled ahead and held a 39-34 lead with 7:58 left in the game. During this time La Verne had gone cold again and didn't score for 4:37.

But the Leopards came back and outscored the Sagehens, 11-1, the rest of the way as the 'Hens got into foul trouble. When Northrop was charged with his fourth foul with 6:15 remaining, Rockwood's two free throws knotted the count, 40-40. Lipkin's basket with 4:02 left put the Leopards in front to stay.

"It was a very low key game and we weren't too enthusiastic," commented a frowning Art Bias of La Verne. "But I am very impressed with the way we came back after we let them go ahead. When I called time out, the first thing the guys said was 'we're not going to lose, we're going to come back and win this game,' and we did."

Neither team shot impressively. La Verne, averaging 50 percent going into the game, hit on only 17 of 44 shots while the Sagehens made 17 of 50.

Wolfpack booters win title, DoCarmo takes scoring lead

Claremont High nailed down the San Antonio League soccer title Wednesday by upending a game but undermanned Montclair squad by a 6-1 count.

The win by the Wolfpack kept them undefeated in SAL action with a 13-0 mark as the regular season draws to a close Friday.

In other SAL soccer play, Damien protected its second spot and possible CIF playoff hopes with a 3-0 win over Ganesha. Chino continued its fine play, beating Pomona 3-1, while Garey whitewashed Webb by a 2-0 score.

Claremont's Gesner DoCarmo took over the SAL scoring lead, and the CIF record, by banging home four goals against Montclair. Bart Sullivan accounted for only two in the Damien win, thus DoCarmo now leads the "great race" for SAL player scoring honors, the Wolfpack star having 40 to Sullivan's 39 going into the final league action on Friday.

Claremont had it rough for a long while against Montclair, as the Cavaliers played it close on defense. Claremont did not score in the contest until well into the second half, when Jim Van Zee finally booted home a goal.

From then on it was all Claremont, as DoCarmo accounted for his four scores and Jesus Chavez added another. Rick Adams kicked a goal for Montclair, only the third that Pack goalie Casey Roberts has allowed this season in league.

Damien also had a fairly difficult time of it against Ganesha, but Sullivan's two goals were all that goalie Rob Lamb needed in shutting out the Giants. Rick Davis had the other Spartan goal. Ganesha goalie George Bueno played a fine game in the net, but the Giants could not muster an offense against Damien.

Chino got two goals from Martie Pimentel and one from Victor Campos as they came from a 1-0 deficit to upend Pomona. The Cowboys had been held scoreless in the opening half by the Devils, and Pomona had taken the lead on a pealty kick goal before Chino came back.

Garey got all the scoring it needed on goals by Jesse Parrilla and Mario Rios in downing Webb 2-0. The Vikings forged an early lead and played tough on defense the rest of the way to blank the Gauls.

Cal Poly baseballers heading for Arizona

POMONA — Cal Poly's baseball team has started hitting (and winning) just in the nick of time.

The Broncos play three big games this weekend at Tucson against the University of Arizona and they may be up against some of the lustiest bats in the West. Cal Poly will play two games Friday afternoon and another contest Saturday morning at Arizona.

So far this season the Arizona batters have hammered out a total of 56 runs in winning their first five games with ridiculous ease. Undefeated Arizona won three games from Texas Tech by scores of 10-0, 12-1 and 10-0, and then trounced Azusa Pacific, 15-1 and 9-2 the first two days of this week.

Cal Poly goes to Arizona with a record of 4-3, after winning its last three contests. The Broncos started the season losing three out of their first four games, managing to score but a single run in each of the three losing efforts. But coach John Scolinos' hitters have suddenly found the range in victories over Long Beach State and CS Los Angeles.

Outfielder Dave Metkovich is currently leading Bronco batters with a .429 average followed by infielder Dennis Rogers .318, outfielder Pete Alexander .360 and first baseman Paul Kargl, 333.

The games at Arizona will serve as final exams for the Broncos before they start CCAA conference action next week against UC Riverside.

Scolinos plans to start Dee King, who has a record of two wins against no defeats, in the opener at Tucson. Either Tom Rosenstein or Mike Heinen will pitch the second of the Friday doubleheader. Vic Bernal will hurl in the Saturday game.

Scolinos and his Broncos drove to Arizona today and will return late Saturday if they obtain adequate supplies of gasoline.

Stags drop 73-59 tilt to 2nd-place Redlands

REDLANDS — The Bulldogs of Redlands College, making a belated run at at league leading Whittier, rolled over Claremont-Mudd, 73-59 Wednesday night at Redlands.

The Stags are responsible for Redlands' second-place position. The Bulldogs split two games with Whittier but had lost an earlier game to the Stags, 68-66.

But Wednesday night Redlands led all the way. As a result, the Bulldogs remain a game behind Whittier (which defeated Caltech) and the Stags remain tied for fifth place with Pomona-Pitzer (which lost to La Verne 45-40).

Foward Kim Cheatum led the Stags in a losing cause. Cheatum had 12 points and six rebounds. Center Dave Willhite had also grabbed six rebounds and scored 10 points.

Forward Dan Moon led Redlands with 16 points while Charles Aubert had 12 rebounds.

The Bulldogs outrebounded the Stags, 31-27 Both teams shot over 50 percent. Redlands hit on 35 of 68 (51.5 percent) while Claremont-Mudd connected on 29 of 54 (53.7 percent).

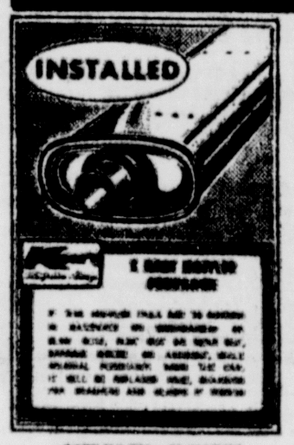

The Stags travel to Whittier Saturday night while Redlands confronts La Verne at Bonita high. The Bulldogs are only a game ahead of the red-hot Leos and a loss would result in the two being tied for second.

Freedom big item for NFL players

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — National Football League players are more concerned this year with freedom and elimination of "fines, curfews and silly rules" than they are with economic issues, according to the executive director of the NFL Players Association.

Ed Garvey, speaking Wednesday at the Milwaukee Pen and Mike Club, said overall freedom for the athlete would be the prime objective of the association in its negotiations next month with NFL owners.

Another main objective will be pay for pre-season games, he said.

Garvey said freedom for the players "means no curfews, no training camps, no fines and when a players' contract is terminated, he's free to contract with any other club.

"We have to cut out these fines, curfews and silly rules. We have to treat the athletes like people."

Negotiations will open March 16 and Garvey said that players will 'be asking for less money now than last time out." He said that while they hope there is no strike, "we're prepared for it and if we have to strike, we will."

However, he said the association is proposing arbitration as an alternative to a strike if the negotiations become deadlocked.

Concerning pay for pre-season games, Garvey said at present rookies get virtually nothing for pre-season contests and the pay for veterans is far below that of the regular season.

He said the association would try to get a pay scale for rookies and try to make sure that veterans get "almost as much as they do for the regular season."

Garvey said the association would not try to eliminate the common draft in the negotiations but would seek to have players declared free agents at the end of a contract period.

Garvey also said the association wanted the negotiations to be open, with members of the news media permitted to attend sessions.

He said economic questions in the negotiations would be limited to "the obvious ones."

"We're not saying the owners shouldn't make a profit. We're just saying they shouldn't take freedom away from an individual to make a profit."

He called the attitude of the owners one of "all-pervasive paternalism," and said the current practice of fining players and requiring them to make curfews and stay in a training camp was an example of this attitude.

Ty Critchlow in top 10 at tourney

WINSTON - SALEM, N.C. (UPI) — Claremont's Ty Critchlow rates seventh in the $100,000 Winston-Salem Bowling Classic after first two rounds Wednesday.

Tom Hudson of Akron, Ohio took over first place when he followed his opening 1,312 effort with a 1,320 series. Hudson showed a 219 average for the day with a pinfall of 2,632.

A final qualifying round will be held this afternoon. The 160-man field will then be slashed to 24 match game semifinalists and another 24 games are then on tap today to decide the five finalists for Saturday's windup period.

In second place after two rounds was Sam Flanagan of Parkersburg, W. Va. with a 2,623 total, followed by Mark Roth of Brooklyn, N.Y., at 2,608. Jim Godman of Lorain, Ohio, was fourth at 2,592 and Ed Ressler of Allentown, Pa. fifth at 2,583.

Lambert likes playing UCLA

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Many high school basketball hot-shots dream of coming to Southern California and playing at UCLA where national championships and undefeated seasons are commonplace.

Then there are those who dream of being on the other side, of playing on the team that beats the team that won all those championships.

At least, that's the way 6-foot-10 forward John Lambert looked at it when he was a high school senior in Berkeley, Calif.

"As far back as I can remember, I always wanted to play against UCLA," said Lambert, whose views brought him to the University of Southern California, UCLA's cross-town rival.

"I want to be on the team that beats them," he said. "Playing on the No. 1 team is always a great honor, but playing on the team that takes the No. 1 spot away would also be quite an honor."

Not since 1966, when Lambert was a seventh grader, has a USC team had such a good chance of ending UCLA's domination of the Pacific Eight Conference and the NCAA championship. During last week's visit to Oregon, the Trojans went 2-0 while UCLA incredibly lost two straight. The teams are now tied at 7-2 in the Pac-8 and have identical 18-3 records overall.

"We went completely bananas when we heard they had lost to Oregon State Friday night," Lambert recalled. "And then we watched the Oregon game on tv the next day. We couldn't believe it."

Lambert, like everyone else, is wondering what went wrong with the Bruins in Oregon.

"There must be something wrong," he said. "They can certainly play a lot better. It's hard to see a team go through problems like they're going through, even though at the same time we want to beat them."

For the rejuvenated Trojans, Lambert, a junior, has averaged 10.3 points per game and a team-leading 7.4 rebounds per game. To win the Pac-8 for the first time in 13 years, USC will probably have to win all five remaining conference games, including a March 9 showdown with UCLA on the Trojans' home court, the Sports Arena.

In an earlier meeting with the Bruins this season, USC held a six-point edge with 15 minutes to go before the bottom dropped out.

"We just went flat in the last 15 minutes," said Lambert, recalling the 65-54 loss at Pauley Pavillion. "But we are a good offensive and defensive team and we think we can play our game and win."

Bobby Chacon gets new foe

INGLEWOOD (UPI) — Japanese bantamweight champion Genzo Kurozawa has been named to fight Bobby Chacon at the Forum March 4, replacing injured Kenny Weldon.

Weldon pulled out of the bout Wednesday after suffering a chipped bone in his elbow during training.

Kurozaw became the first fighter to go the distance with undefeated Danny Lopez in a Los Angeles bout in January, losing a 10-round decision.

The Chacon-Kurozawa fight will be a preliminary to the 12-round featherweight battle between Art Hafey and Ruben Olivares.

Pro golfers eager for richest stop

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Most of the nation's leading golf pros put aside the fun and jokes of comedian Jackie Gleason's annual week-long Inverrary golf extravaganza today and tee off in a chase for $260,000 in prize money, the nation's richest tournament.

Lee Trevino is defending champion but only one of the favorites lined up for 72 holes over the testing, 7,128-yard, creek-laced course carved out of an Everglades cypress swamp.

Jack Nicklaus was on hand primed to "put it together here" after a couple of bad putting rounds which threw him back in the pack at Los Angeles last week. Another favorite is U.S. Open champion Johnny Miller, who won the first three tourneys of the year and has already banked more than $107,000 in winnings.

Ageless Sam Snead said he was going along "just to keep the boys honest." The 61-year-old slammer did just that in the Campbell Open at Los Angeles where he led the third round and tied for second at the finish.

"I wasn't doing anything different, the other boys weren't playing up to par," Snead said.

Among the notables missing on the tour this week are Dave Stockton, who won at Los Angeles last Sunday, Arnold Palmer and South African Gary Player, who was reported still in his homeland.

But the field does include the likes of Tom Weiskopf, winner of the inaugural Gleason Classic in 1972 and third year; Bobby Nichols, winner of the recent Andy Williams-San Diego Open; and Hubert Green, victor in the Bob Hope Desert Classic.

Starting out, Trevino could be the "hungriest" golfer in the pack. He hasn't had a victory since leaving Florida last winter. The Merry Mex grabbed the $52,000 first money here then two weeks later captured another $30,000 in winning the Doral-Eastern Open at Miami.

Even though he wound up with $210,000 and fourth place in the 1973 earnings list, Trevino couldn't buy another win. And so far this year, he's banked less than $5,000.

Mustangs, 'Hounds win Claremont titles

CLAREMONT — The Mustangs and Greyhounds will be representing Claremont in the state American Youth Soccer Organization (AYSO) team playoffs in Division II and III respectively.

The two Claremont teams will be hosting Sierra Madre at Sumner Park on Saturday, March 9, in the first round of the state tournament. In winning the Claremont leagues, the Mustangs and Greyhounds are automatic Region III champions.

The Greyhounds defeated the Kangaroos, 2-1, in a playoff game.

To represent Claremont in the Division II playoffs, the Mustangs needed to win the White League, which is considered the circuit with the top talent.

The Tigers edged the Ocelots, 2-1, to win top honors among the Division II teams competing in the Red and Blue leagues. The Tigers won Blue League honors while the Ocelots were tops in the Red League. Keith McManigal scored both goals for the Tigers in the city title game while Doug Kalar scored for the Ocelots.

In consolation playoff action, the Stags, Rams and Broncos advanced with victories last week.

The Comets will be playing the Jets for the Claremont Division I title this weekend. The Suns defeated the Fireballs, 4-1, to create a three-way tie for the regular season championship but fell to the Comets, 10-2, in the first match of a three-way playoff among the three champions.

All the Claremont All-Star teams were eliminated from state competition by Manhattan Beach last week.

The Division II girls fell to Manhattan Beach, 2-1, in the quarterfinals.

Claremont rallied in the second half to tie the score on a goal by Smokey Mueller with an assist from Laura Myers but Manhattan Bach was able to break the tie.

Other members of the Claremont team included Jo Ann Farinella, Michelle Folder, Sue Ann Gutten, Candy James, Shanna McBryant, Katie Weinberg and goalie Margie Boor.

Poly recruits three JC defensive stars

POMONA — Three defensive standouts are the latest junior college football transfers to coach Andy Vinci's Cal Poly Broncos.

Scott Sanders, a speedy 6-2 defensive back who gained numerous honors at Mt. Hood Community College in Oregon the last two years, is returning to the sunnier climate of Southern California and will be on the Cal Poly campus in time for spring drills. He played at Miraleste High School near Torrance.

The Wolfpack was paced by a double win by Jim Moore in the 200 yard freestyle and the 500 yard freestyle.

Oakland slates game vs. Eagles

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders announced Wednesday they will meet the Philadelphia Eagles in a home exhibition game on Saturday, Aug. 24.

This will be the second exhibition game for the Raiders, who previously announced they would play the Dallas Cowboys on Saturday, Aug. 3.

The Raider-Eagle game will mark the third time the two clubs have met in exhibition games. The Raiders won in 1970 while the Eagles took the 1971 game.

Sports news in brief

THE SOUNDS OF SEBRING have been stilled, perhaps forever. For nearly 25 years, Sebring, Fla. has been synonymous with sports cars. Its narrow, twisting track on an old World War II era B-17 Flying Fortress bomber base drew the big names of the sports car world. But it all apparently came to an end Wednesday when the International Motor Sports Association announced the scheduled March 24 event has been postponed because of the gasoline shortage.

HARV SCHMIDT, who came back to his alma mater at Illinois in the shadow of a "slush fund" scandal and ran afoul of recruiting problems, resigned Wednesday as the Illini basketball coach effective at the end of the season. Illinois is 4-15 for the year with an 11-game losing streak.

EACH OF THE TOP SEEDS had an easy time in opening day competition Wednesday at the Detroit stop of the Virginia Slims Tennis Tournament, with top seeded Billie Jean King cruising past Detroiter Trish Faulkner 6-0, 6-2.

THE CHICAGO FIRES of the World Football League has signed up at least three players for this year's maiden season by topping offers from National Football League teams. Leo Hayden of the St. Louis Cardinals; Glenn Robinson, a third round draft choice of the Baltimore Colts; and Mark Kellar, national collegiate rushing champion from Northern Illinois, signed with the new team.

IT WAS A BIG NIGHT FOR THE HOWE FAMILY, especially big daddy. Veteran Gordie Howe took the scoring lead in the World Hockey Association by scoring his 27th goal and contributing two assists to lead the Houston Aeros past the Jersey Knights, 7-2, Wednesday night. Sons Mark and Marty each added goals in the rout.

THE INTERNATIONAL TRACK ASSOCIATION—in its second year—returns to the site of one of its most successful meets this weekend and to the birthplace of professional track competition when it stages a meet at Salt Lake City Friday and at Pocatello, Ida. Saturday night.

USC tracksters visit UC Irvine

LOS ANGELES — A USC track team, which coach Vern Wolfe describes as his "youngest ever", will open its season Saturday at UC Irvind. The meet begins at 1:15 p.m. and also includes highly regarded San Diego State and Long Beach State.

Actually, USC has already had one meet. The Trojans spent a week in Hawaii during the semester break and met the University of Hawaii in a non-scoring affair, winning all 17 events.

Senior high jumper Dean Owens set a Hawaiian Islands record by clearing 7-0¼. Other impressive marks were pole vaulter Robert Pullard's 16-8, JC transfer Guy Abrahams' wind-aided 9.5 100, James Baxter's 1:50.5 880 and Fred Ritcherson beating former Stanford ace Duncan McDonald with a 13:56.1 three-mile.

Kiwanis Club holds tourney

PMONA — The Kiwanis Club of Pomona will sponsor a mixed doubles bowling tourney at the Garey Bowl in Pomona. The tourney will be held this Sunday and March 3.

The tourney will begin at 10 a.m. both days. The cost is $10 per couple per entry. Couples should arrive 30 minutes prior to the 10 a.m. starting time if they plan to compete.

The charity event is open to everyone, with proceeds of the tourney going to youth and community services sponsored by the Kiwanis. For reservations and further information call Stan Shire at the Garey Center Bowl, (714) 593-4515.

Diamond Bar AYSO holds playoff games

DIAMOND BAR — The Diamond Bar-Walnut American Youth Organization (AYSO) will holds its Soccer Awards Day Saturday at Lorbeer Junior High.

Diamond Bar-Walnut will crown its Dvision II and III champions with playoff games Saturday. The winners will advance into the state AYSO playoffs.

The Pintos will play the Mustangs at 9 a.m. for the Division III crown while the Pioneers are scheduled to meet the Toros at 10 a.m. for Division II honors.

John Ramsey's goal and Paul Caligiuris' field play led the Pintos to an 1-0 win over the Bombers for the second half Division III title in a special playoff game after both teams finished in a tie in the final standings.

The Mustangs were the first half champions.

In Division II action, the Pioneers swept through the second half with an undefeated record to earn the right to play the Toros, first half champions.

Memphis wants in NFL

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Millionaire Edward W. Cook, who sold a lot of grain to the Russians back in 1972, says he thinks the National Football League will buy Memphis this weekend.

"I personally believe expansion will be made next week and that Memphis will be chosen," Cook said Wednesday on returning home from talks with influential NFL team owners Lamar Hunt and George Halas.

"Both of them are strongly in favor of expansion," he told a luncheon of business and civic leaders hosted by Mid-South Sports, Inc., a group pumping Memphis for the NFL.

The 26 team owners will meet with NFL executives at Miami this weekend to decide, among other things, whether or not to expand by possibly two or four teams in the near future. But a decision could be postponed until summer.

Hunt, owner of the Kansas City Chiefs, is president of the American Conference. Halas owns the Chicago Bears and is president of the National Conference of the NFL.

Cook is president of Cook Industries, Inc., and almost personally negotiated the multimillion-dollar private grain deal with Russia two years ago. He and potato chip maker Herman Lay of Dallas have both expressed interest in obtaining a Memphis franchise.

This cotton capital of 850,000 is among half-dozen cities, including Seattle, Tampa, and Phoenix, which are considered high on the NFL's possible expansion list.

Memphis lost — or gave up—its World Football League franchise earlier this week when it was moved to Houston before ever getting established here.

Pomona AYSO

Soccer Day on tap

By ADRIAN MERCADO
P-B Correspondent

POMONA — The Pomona American Youth Soccer Organization (AYSO) wound up its 1973-74 season in an explosive manner. With many pennants on the line, the action was more abundant than a three ring circus.

Sunday will mark the third annual celebration of Pomona AYSO Soccer Day. It will be held at Palomares Park starting at 10:30 a.m. with Division I All-Stars playing against the coaches. All teams have been arranging for pot-luck lunches and refreshments. The day's events will include presentation of trophies and awards, Division II All-Star game, and Division III All-Star game. Last year's Soccer Day was a tremendous success and everyone is looking forward to having a great time.

In Division II the Fraada Homes Eagles and the Pomona Police Relief Association Marauders faced each other with much at stake. The Eagles, who are able to beat anyone when they put their game together, had their sights on second place while the Marauders, who weakened at the season's end, desperately needed a point to clinch first place.

Both teams fought hard for their goals which came from David Carey for the Marauders and Mike Fox for the Eagles to tie up the game at 1-1. As a result of the tie, the Marauders clinched first place and the Eagles took third place.

The Auto Parts Thunderbirds and the Pomona Optimists Hawks met to decide first and second place in their respective leagues. The Hawks, needing a win to take first place hustled to the very end but couldn't even secure a tie which would have tied them with the league leading Marauders. After a scoreless first half, the Thunderbirds Ricky Garcia booted in the only goal of the game to give both teams a second place finish.

The Eastern Airlines Wings wert trying for a second place miracle which never materialized. The Eastern Wings which have been playing hot and cold all season long played this game lukewarm against a well poised and relaxed Southwest Concrete Products Renegades, who had already taken the Blue League pennant. Rusty Grimes scored a "hat trick" while Peter Trejo and Steven Mercado tallied for the third place Wings.

In Division III play, the Pomona first Federal Jackrabbits obtained the Blue League Pennant by outscoring the Holiday Inn Hustlers, 3-1. The Hustlers, as a result, ended in a first place tie with the Falcons. David Domico (2) and Chris Urgeleit tallied for the Jackrabbits and Rodney Smith was the Hustlers' hustling goal scorer.

The Cal Poly Optimist Roadrunners and the K&M Floor Falcons rivaled each other in their usual dynamic manner and tied the game at 1-1. Deron Leopez opened the scoring for the Falcons and Steve Lewis knotted it for the Roadrunners.

CFG to consider increasing scale of angler access fees

SACRAMENTO — The California Fish and Game Commission has announced its intention to consider increasing the scale of maximum angler access fees that operators may charge on reservoirs receiving maintenance stocking of state-reared fish.

Present commission policy provides for access fees not to exceed $1 per day per car or 25 cents per day per person. Because of inflation, the Department of Fish and Game is recommending increases to $1.25 and 30 cents, respectively, to reflect the 25 percent increase in the consumer price index since 1969 when the schedule was adopted.

The commission's sliding scale of maximum allowable fees applies only to nonprofit fishing reservoirs that receive maintenance stocking of state fish.

Lake operators who match the state's stocking program with fish purchased from private fish farms and who reinvest all fishing access revenues in the fishing program are permitted somewhat higher fees.

Commissioners made the announcement Feb. 8 in San Luis Obispo and will take action on the DFG request to raise fees March 8 in San Francisco. The amount of the increase, if granted, would depend on evidence presented at the meeting, the commission indicated.

The commission denied the request of the Fishermen's Cooperative Association to increase the 100,000-ton quota for the commercial anchovy reduction fishery in the southern permit area this year to 165,000 tons.

According to Tony Pisano of the association, fishermen expected to reach the old quota by mid-February and, "because scientific evidence indicates that no harm will come to the resource if the quota is reasonably increased," they wanted permission to harvest more anchovies. The season in the southern area began Sept. 15 and will continue through May 15.

But the commission accepted the arguments of sport fishermen, partyboat operators and bait haulers who opposed any increase in the quota. Opponents included representatives of the Ocean Fish Protective Association, Charter Boat Association, Sportfishing Association of California and the southern California Sportsmen's Council.

Landings in the state's commercial anchovy reduction fishery during January totaled 5,382 tons, bringing the season's total to 98,562 tons. Landings through January last year came to 34,862 tons.

Included in the January 1974 figures were 5,326 tons taken from the southern permit area and 60 tons caught in the northern permit area. Seasonal totals include 10,662 tons from the north and 87,900 tons from the south.

Commissioners also announced their intention to adopt regulations for the use of Tomales Bay Ecological Reserve and to adopt a list of four common names — Pacific red snapper, Pacific butterfish, Pacific ocean shrimp and Dungeness — for species of rockfish, sablefish, shrimp and crab.

WCB to consider many projects

SACRAMENTO — Proposed projects for developments ranging from public fishing access sites throughout the state to improvements at Central Valleys Hatchery in suburban Sacramento will go before the California Wildlife Conservation Board late this month. The WCB acquires and constructs fish and wildlife conservation projects.

Peter T. Fletcher, of Rancho Santa Fe, San Diego County, acting chairman of the WCB, announced that the board will meet in Room 6024 of the State Capitol at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 26.

The $64,000 hatchery project at Elk Grove is one of about a dozen for nearly three-quarters of a million dollars that will be before the board, according to WCB Executive Officer Chester M. Hart.

Under terms of the proposal by the Department of Fish and Game, the WCB would convert the experimental facility to a pilot hatchery that could produce 150,000 yearling striped bass or largemouth black bass annually for stocking purposes.

Included in the proposed improvement are drilling a well for an additional water supply and conversion of existing tanks to 36 raceway ponds for rearing purposes. Ponds also would be used for experimental rearing of largemouth bass for maintenance stocking in reservoirs.

Artificial spawning and rearing of striped bass has been under way on an experimental basis in California for three years. Mature stripers are caught, held in tanks and artificially ripened with hormone injections.

For several years striped bass have been experimentally stocked in selected California reservoirs and in the lower Colorado River. But because reproduction in new water has been poor, maintenance stocking has been necessary.

Included among other proposals is a plan to spend $358,500 in WCB funds for development of two lakes adjacent to Legg Lake in the Whittier-Narrows Dam Recreation Area, Los Angeles County.

Site of an initial WCB project approved nearly 20 years ago, the lake 15 miles east of the Los Angeles civic center, Legg Lake last year reported 1,812,700 visitor days. The DFG has stocked the free public fishing area with trout, channel catfish and other warm-water fish over the years.

Proposed work includes installing a plastic liner in the exisiting 12-acre Center Lake and converting a highway fill borrow pit at North Lake to a 22-acre fishing lake by similar development. The improvements would provide another 1.3 miles of shoreline for fishermen in the Los Angeles metropolitan area.

Other proposed projects include:

Fields Landing fishing access improvements, Humboldt County, $75,000; South Fork Eel River fishing access acquisition, Humboldt County, $11,000; Feather River access acquisition, Plumas County, $800; Upper Tomales Bay shoreline acquisition, Marin County, $21,500; Channel Islands harbor coastal access improvement, Ventura County, $47,000; Putah Creek, fishing access expansion, Yolo County, $55,645; Martinez public fishing pier augmentation, Conra Costa County, $35,000; Rio Vista North fishing access, Solano County, no cost; water treatment units at San Joaquin Hatchery, $17,100, and Snow Mountain Egg Collecting Station, $9,000.

Younger backs bid to outlaw lead in gasoline

SAN BERNARDINO (UPI) — State Attorney General Evelle Younger lent his support Tuesday to the County Air Pollution Control District's bid to outlaw lead in all gasoline sold in Orange County for a three-year period.

Younger said in a friend-of-the-court brief that the state gives county air pollution control districts the power to regulate gasoline additives.

California is the only state which has air quality control standards for lead.

Younger filed the brief in the Fourth District Court of Appeals.

The Orange County Superior Court blocked the air pollution control district from implementing the gasoline lead plan in 1972.

The Western Oil and Gas Association, the trade organization of the nation's 10 major oil companies, has opposed the experiment, saying the district does not have the right to rule on gasoline additives.

'39 theme girl still 35-25-35

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — The theme girl for the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition returned to Treasure Island recently for a 35th anniversary celebration — with her measurements unchanged.

When the fair opened her name was Zoe Dell Lantis, 23, and she measured 35-25-35.

She still measures 35-25-35 and fits very nicely into her pirate girl costume.

Only now she is Mrs. E. J. Nutter, 58, wife of a jet engine designer who flew her back from their home in Xenia, Ohio.

NEW RECRUIT — Midshipman Mark Benner, 20, of Portland, Ore., adjusts his cap on Della Anholt, 19, of Portland aboard the States Lines vessel, SS Oregon. Miss Anholt has applied for admission to the United States Maritime Academy and Rep. Edith Green has nominated her to the academy.

Fishermen hijack ferry to aid expectant mother

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) — A group of fishermen hijacked a ferry Tuesday to deliver an expectant mother to a hospital in Naples after she was left stranded when another ferry failed to stop on her island.

They said the woman in the labors of childbirth was left stranded on Procida when a ferry failed to make a scheduled stop there because of rough seas. Fishermen then set out to sea on their boats, boarded another ferry on a direct trip from Ischia to Naples and commandeered it and forced it to stop in Procida and pick up the woman and 30 other stranded passengers, officials said.

Shipping officials said no immediate action was taken against the hijackers, who left the ship on arrival in Naples.

Tax on resources

Wyoming plans for fuelless future

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — Wyoming has taken the first steps to use the energy crisis by socking away some cash for the rainy day when fuel resources run out.

The state's legislators have tripled the tax on fossil fuels from one to three per cent and approved a constitutional amendment to set up a permanent fund for half the revenue from the tax that will go into a "bank" for the time when resources run out along with the money.

Voters will have the final say on the permanent fund in November.

"Wyoming for the first time in its history has reached a point that permits us to talk about taxes in a light other than imposing them just for current operating expenses," said Gov. Stan Hathaway. "This is a point at which many states would like to be."

A recent survey by the state estimated that about 17 billion tons of low sulfur coal was accessible by strip mining in the Powder River basin of northeast Wyoming, the richest coal area in the state and one of the richest in the nation.

Increased petroleum prices have spurred new capital for drilling ventures and led to several new discoveries.

"As late as a year ago it was difficult to attract capital to Wyoming to drill exploratory oil and gas wells with $3.50 and $4 a barrel oil," the governor said.

Prices reached $8 a barrel in December and there were reports early this year of prices going as high as $10 a barrel. A similar increase occurred in coal.

"The state government helped negotiate a unit train rate in 1968 and 1969 for Iowa public service," Hathaway said.

"The margin of profit was so close then, that 10 or 15 cents a ton made the difference in whether or not coal would be transported to Iowa to be used in a fossil fuel power plant.

"The price of coal has increased in the last year on an average of 40 to 50 cents a ton. It will probably go up at least that much and perhaps another $1 a ton in 1974."

State Treasurer James Griffith said the increased tax would generate about $16 million this year, more than three times last year's that of last year, and production is just beginning to boom.

"I think this will eliminate any possibility in the foreseeable future of an income tax for the state of Wyoming," Griffith said.

Hathaway predicted the permanent fund could reach $1 billion by the end of the century.

That compares with the 1973-74 biennial budget of nearly $483 million.

Interest from the fund could be used for roads, sewer and school construction and reclamation of strip-mined land.

EVEN SIBERIAN TIGERS — Milk has something for every body, even this tiger's at Japanese Deer Park in Buena Park. Chris McMillan used the body builder to coax Khan, the tiger, into the traces of a rickshaw at the tourist attraction, thus solving part of the energy crisis facing her there.

No help in Washington

Business woman can't beat Teamsters Union

WASHINGTON (UPI — "If the labor unions ever run the country," she said, "well all I can say is God help America." Then Marie Shultz cried.

It had been a tough 32 weeks for Mrs. Shultz, 63-year-old owner of a small, Waukegan, Ill., moving firm.

Thirteen of her 14 trucks have been repossessed by the bank. She estimates she is losing up to $28,000 a month on a business that grossed $268,000 in 1972. She is tired and confused and angry.

Marie Shultz is fighting the Teamsters. Specifically, she is fighting Teamsters Local 705, which she said has ordered a strike against her firm because the local demanded she sign a new contract without first negotiating it.

She didn't sign.

That was 32 weeks ago and the pickets—six of her former employes—are still marching.

So Mrs. Shultz came to Washington, for 10 days she has walked from agency to agency, appealing for help. She has talked to dozens of bureaucrats. She has talked to senators and congressmen.

Her briefcase is bulging with lists of places she has been, names of people she has been passed on to, along with pictures of her 2-year-old grandson, "who was going to have this (the firm) some day."

"I've walked 30 miles, I know," she said wearily. "I've walked because I can't afford taxis or buses. I borrowed the money to get here and now I have to go home because I don't have enough to pay for another night at my hotel."

It is hard not to feel compassion for the woman as she talks of a business she has put "my heart into" for 28 years.

In 1946 she bought three panel trucks and together with her new husband, Louis, they delivered goods to 10 grocery stores at 25 cents a delivery. The fledgling firm of Merchant Moving and Storage grossed $6,000 the first month.

Now her husband is in Florida. He is dying. And Merchant Moving and Storage is floundering under the weight of a powerful labor union.

Mrs. Shultz recalled the major part of the firm's work— 90 per cent—was moving household goods for the military. Now her one truck (under lease) cannot even get on a military base, much less movt any goods to or from it.

How does she get by, she was asked.

"My creditors are being beautiful," she replied, trying to smile and dabbing at tears at the same time. "They're staying away from me. My credit was ace high before all this happened."

She had a two-word assessment of her mission to Washington: "People listened."

But she was not sure her pilgrimage will result in any changes in Local 705's policies. "I'm afraid this will go on until I'm dead," she said.

Children hurt

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Every seventh marriage in West Germany is dissolved, according to figures released by the Caritas, the Roman Catholic charity organization.

Caritas said the number of children affected by divorces had more than doubled over the last 15 years.

In 1971 a total of 80,000 couples divorced involving and 42,890 children.

Taiwan: Piao poisoned by Chairman Mao

TAIPEI (UPI) — Lin Piao, the late Chinese defense minister, was not killed in a plane crash as officially reported but was poisoned by Chairman Mao Tse-tung, Taiwan's Central Broadcasting System (CBS) reported Tuesday.

The government radio station which beams its broadcast toward the mainland, gave as the source of its information on Lin Piao's death a letter received from China's Kwangtung province from an unidentified letter-writer.

"Mao Tse-tung killed Lin Piao and 11 others in 1971 and told people on the mainland Lin Piao tried to escape by plane and was killed by crashing into a mountain," the letter said. "This is not true. They were killed by poisoning."

Peking reported Lin was killed in a plane crash Sept. 13, 1971, in Outer Mongolia as he fled an unsuccessful coup attempt againt Mao.

Driver: "I got no gas."

Official: "Oh."

The 20 mpg luxury wagon.

Introducing the 1974 Volkswagen 412 Wagon covered by Owner's Security Blanket.

Before the energy crisis hit us all in the gas tank, the VW 412 was right.

Now it's more right than ever.

With the nation's big gas guzzlers in disfavor, the 412 Wagon may be one of the few luxury wagons still around.

For it gets a good 20 miles per gallon.

How's that for a luxury wagon that also treats you to loads of space, plush seats and elegant carpeting?

Fact is, it's the only luxury wagon with the above combination of features, standard equipment, for only $4200.*

Guess you could say the VW 412 is a luxury wagon whose time hath come.

*The 1974 Volkswagen 412 Wagon suggested retail price, P.O.E. Local taxes and other charges, if any, additional.

LVC to present theater workshop

LA VERNE — La Verne College will sponsor a workshop, "Visions for a Changing Theater," in the rehearsal theater of the new Dailey Theater from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday.

Reservations can be made with Linda de Vries, associate professor of speech and drama, at 593-3511.

The workshop will include a film and lectures — discussion on experimental theater groups of the late 1960s.

Sponsored by the Encounter Committee and the theater arts department, the sessions will be led by Mark Hall Amitin, the founding director of Universal Movement Theater Repertory. He has conducted lectures and workshops at more than 50 universities and colleges.

The first section of the workshop, from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m., will explore the possibilities of creating theatrical work through the techniques of dynamics, sound and movement. Students will also be instructed in understanding the relationship of the actor and his body in interaction with others actors.

A film and lecture-discussion from 3 to 6 p.m. will complete the workshop. The film, "If I Could Turn You On," is a composite of four productions of the 1968-69 tour of the Living Theater by Bernie Coyne. The lecture-discussion will explore the radical and experimental theater, where it is now and where it would seem to be heading. It will encompass discussions of work by Beck, Brook, Chaikin, Garcia , Gregory, Ludlam, Malina, Marowitz, Savary, Schechner, Schumann, Viccarro and Valdez.

Illness of attorney delays trial again

ONTARIO — Jury selection for the trial of eight Youth Training School wards and a former counselor accused of assaulting other prisoners has been continued in West Valley Superior Court another week due to the illness of the attorney for one of the defendants.

The jury selection process was delayed last week due to a previous court case commitment of one defense attorney, and again this week due to the illness of attorney Michael Quinn, defending YTS ward Alvin Todd.

Jury selection in the case began three weeks ago in the courtroom of Judge James Cunningham. The eight wards and their former counselor were indicted by the San Bernardino County Grand Jury on charges of conspiracy to commit assault with a deadly weapon on other prisoners at YTS on July 9, 1973. They pleaded innocent.

The defendants, besides Todd are Gregory McCloud, Virgil Dunkentell, Henry Jackson, Athonny R. Rixter, Donald M. Candler, Bertram Rogers and Marvin Kincy and their former counselor Stanley Wagstaff, 31, all Negroes. They are accused of attacking a group of Caucasian wards at YTS between living units W and X. Seven of the youths allegedly engaged in the fight were hospitalized with stab wounds and other injuries, including two of the defendants.

Judge Cunningham granted the continuance of the trial after the court learned that Quinn, defending Todd, would be unable to proceed with the case due to an illness. Cunningham appointed attorney Larry Sackey to replace Quinn and gave him a week to review and prepare Todd's defense.

Vets have overstayed --Cranston

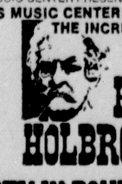

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Sen. Alan Cranston thinks the veterans who occupied his office here are something like the man who came to dinner-they have overstayed their welcome.

The California Democrat orginally went along with the dozen veterans, protesting the policies of the Veteran's Administration, who moved into his office. They went on a hunger strike and said they would not leave until they meet with VA Director Donald Johnson.

That was nine days ago and the veterans are still there, camping out on the floor. Some of them are in wheelchairs. Johnson has agreed to meet with the protesters, saying he will come to Los Angeles sometime in the next 30 days.

The protesters say they don't want to leave until Johnson arrives.

"Our view is that Johnson made a reasonable offer," said Cranston's chief aide, Lu Haas. "We think the protest has served its purpose and we want them to leave. We have asked them several times to go."

Major banks reduce rate of interest

NEW YORK (UPI) — Most of tht nation's major banks dropped their prime interest rate from 9-¼ to 9 per cent Tuesday, indicating the Federal Reserve Board may be letting up somewhat on its strict monetary policy.

The prime rate reached an all-time high of 10 per cent last October and again in December before declining last month.

It will be some months, however, before lower interest rates extend to the smaller individual and mortgage loans made by banks, as prime rates are applicable only to large loans, usually taken by corporations.

The latest reductions completed a round of quarter-point reductions begun last Thursday by leading banks in New York and Los Angeles.

The previous rate of 9-¼ per cent had prevailed nationwide for only about a week following an earlier cutback from 9-½ per cent completed Feb. 11.

Teen Forum

Couple has young pals

By JEAN ADAMS

OPEN HOUSE: (Q.) I am 22, a wife and mother. In my neighborhood are a bunch of teen-agers ranging from 14 to 17. To help stop so-called "juvenile delinquency" in this area, I have been allowing these teens to come into my home after school and evenings.

The only things they do in my home are watch television, play records, play games, and "horse around" as teen-agers do.

The problem is, some of their parents are trying to read something else into this hospitality. My husband and I can't understand why. They know where the kids are and they know what our phone number is if they need to check on the kids or get in touch with them. What do you think? —Misunderstood in New York.

(A.) There are always a few people with dirty minds. Do not let them keep you from making friends.

But also do not delude yourself. You and your husband are not doing all this just to be doing good — but because you enjoy having young people around. Go ahead and enjoy it. The more you like it, and show it, the more your guests will like it.

TWO GIRLS: (Q.) There are two girls who like me. They are both good friends and I like them both. Both of them want me to be their boy friend. I don't want to hurt their feelings. What should I do? — 13 in Texas

(A.) If you don't have a preference, be friends with both girls. If you do have a preference, get off the fence and make a decision.

L. M. Boyd

Drugs lead to strokes

Relatively few young people between ages 15 and 25 suffer strokes. That's why Los Angeles doctors were baffled recently when so many such cases turned up thereabouts. Further research has convinced those medical experts it's because of drug abuse. Which drugs, specifically? Don't know. Yet.

You probably blink your eyes just about 25 times a minute.

University of Virginia researchers now claim more common colds are passed by handshakes than by coughs and sneezes.

Don't call the fire department to get that kitten out of the tree. Send the mother cat up there. She'll lead it down. So advises an expert on felines.

CAFFEINE

Average cup of coffee contains 90 milligrams of caffeine. That ought not interfere with the sleep of a healthy grownup. So reports the American Medical Association. It's said what that it will keep them awake. Or did you know that? Cup of tea, incidentally, contains about 70 milligrams of caffeine. An equal amount of cola, maybe five milligrams.

Q. "Oldest church still in use in this country is. . .?"

A. The Trinity Church, Chruch Creek, Dorchester County, Md. Built in 1675 to seat 100.

DOCTOR

A young lady who plays the professional golf circuit contends she gets the best medical attention possible. "I've become ill three times on golf courses," says she, "and in each instance there was a doctor in attendance within an hour. I don't believe any of those men would have made house calls."

Much blame is laid upon the Hindus of India for their refusal to slaughter any of the 200 million cattle. The citizenry starves while those beeves roam the market places, it's said, sadly. In this country, millions of dogs and cats wander the city streets. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are spent to feed them special grub. A question commonly asked in many parts of the world is why we don't eat them.

One out every seven families is now run by a lone parent.

There are more red neckties than blue, more blue than brown, more brown then green.

That rabbits reproduce most swiftly is widely known. Less widely known is the fact that a baby cottontail has only about one chance in nine of living long enough to become a parent.

Ask Dr. Brothers

Their indifference

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: About two months ago, I was walking across my college campus at night and a man I'd never seen started to attack me after making sexual advances. I yelled, I tried to hit him hard enough to make him let me go, I called for help and even though I saw at least six men from our football team go by on their way to the gym, no one stopped to help me. I was shocked, hurt and finally angry. In fact, I was so angered at the football players indifference that I believe it gave me the strength and power to shove my attacker so hard that I finally was able to break away and run to my dorm. Even though none of the players knew me personally, I should think one of them would have had the sense to help me just because I was a women obviously in distress. I've since reported this to authorities and written an article about it in our school paper. But, none of this helps me understand how people can be so cruel and uncaring to others.—V.P.

Dear VP: I can't help believing that if the football players had realized what was happening they would have stopped.

They probably misinterpreted what they saw and heard, and felt it was a lovers' quarrel. However, even if this were the case, they should have stopped to help you. Unfortunately, many males hesitate to get involved in a male-female quarrel. We need to reeducate males and encourage them to get involved when assistance is needed.

A team of researchers in a controlled experiment discovered that males are much more likely to help men being assaulted by other men, women being battered by other women, and even men being mauled by women, then to help a woman being attacked by a man. It seems that members of the same sex are much more apt to help each other than are members of the opposite sex.

Tests and studies have been made of why people do not help others and why they seem unconcerned or callous to the needs of others. The results are not quite as depressing as one might expect. Most people really do care and do want to help. People find it rewarding to help others. However there are some situations where the impulse to help is held back. The number of other bystanders can be a factor. It often happens that people in a group pretend to be aloof and don't help just because they feel it is not important.

Other studies have shown that it is not apathy that keeps people from coming to the rescue, it is indecision and uncertainty as to the individual's needs. Passers-by often are just not sure they are witnessing a true emergency. Each looks to the other for guidance. That hesitation is seen by everyone as a lack of concern, and therefore no one thinks the situation is serious and no one does anything.

Psychologists Russell Clark and Larry Word of Florida State University discovered that in a clear situation, subjects took an average of only eight seconds to react, but when the situation became confused, it took somewhat longer.

In your case this confusion, plus the fact that the football players were en route to some place else, may explain their behavior. I think it's important for you to give them the benefit of the doubt and to assume that most, or at least some, would have been quick to come to your rescue if they had understood what was happening.

In order to relieve your own doubts and to work out some of your anger, you might find it helpful to talk with some of those men.

SAD SACK JET—One of four Continental Airlines Boeing 747 jumbo jets wears a taped sad face on its cargo hatch as its sits parked at Roswell, New Mexico, Industrial Airport. A total of 12 of the huge 747s are parked because of the energy crisis.

Proud birds grounded in New Mexico

ROSWELL, N.M. (UPI) — The proud bird with the golden tail has found a nest in the arid Southwest.

Four of the proud birds of Continental Airlines and seven red and blue striped 747s belonging to American Airlines —worth more than a quarter billion dollars—are grounded at an abandoned air base for the duration of the energy crisis.

The two airlines contracted with the city to use the Roswell Industrial Air Center—once one of the largest Strategic Air Command bases in the nation — as a huge parking lot for some of their 747 jumbo jets.

Since last fall the airlines have not been able to find the huge amounts of jet fuel needed to fly the jets and have retired them until fuel becomes available. The 747s use up to 4,000 gallons an hour.

The Continental 747s parked at Roswell were retired from the airlines' mainland-to-Hawaii routes, while American's jetliners came from domestic flights.

"It's a darn shame that they have to be parked here," Mayor William Brainerd said in a telephone interview. The city is charging the airlines—which are exempt from any property tax—only a minimal fee.

The planes valued at about $25 million each, are huddled in separate areas at the old Walker Air Force Base. The airlines keep their own maintenance crews on hand just in case they can fly again.

"Their men take care of the jets every day and they are responsible for their own security, although we also have 24-hour security of our own and we keep the gates locked at all times," Air Center Manager Carson Lowman said.

He said the airlines picked Roswell because of its arid climate. "They were concerned about the corrosion that could be caused on planes stored outside like that," he said.

Agnew novel has publisher

NEW YORK (UPI) —Playboy Press has made a success bid to publish former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's novel it was announced Tuesday.

Scott Meredith, Agnew's literary agent, who made the announcement, said Playboy Press was one of five publishers who submitted "major bids" for the book. Tentatively titled "A Very Special Relationship," the book is about a fictional vice president involved in a heated Soviet-U.S. confrontation.

Playboy Press is a subsidiary of magazine publisher Hugh Hefner's Playboy Enterprises.

Saying it was "more than the $50,000 one columnist mentioned and less than the $250,000 another columnist mentioned," the agent would not reveal the amount of the advance Agnew will receive for his manuscript.

The Ladies Home Journal has bought North American series rights to a portion of the manuscript, but the amount paid has not been revealed. Earlier, Random House reportedly had expressed interest in the book then rejected it.

Although "every major studio' has shown interest in the novel, Meredith said the paperback and film rights have not yet been sold.

"It's remarkably good," the agent said. "There are one or two or three little amateurish touches, but these can be worked out. Mr. Agnew shows remarkable ability as a novelist."

The editorial director of the Playboy Press and Playboy Book Club, Edward Kuhn Jr., said he hoped the book could be published late this year or early 1975. And both he and Meredith said Agnew "is going to write every word of it himself," although he will receive the same editorial assistance that any first novelist does.

Porter Newton Canfield, the principal character in the novel, is a liberal politician appointed to the vice presidency in 1983 by a conservative president following the death of the originally elected vice president, according to Meredith.

After Russian troops move into Afghanistan, a terrorist group in Iran, believing the Soviets are actually after that nation's oil, attempts to use Canfeld to touch off a confrontation between the United States and the U.S.S.R., forming the basic plot to the book.

British political foes

It sure looks like a presidential election

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath says it's not an American-style presidential race.

"I deal only with policy—not with personalities," he says.

Labor party leader Harold Wilson insists, "This election is not about two leaders. It's not a presidential election."

But if Britain's 1974 general election contest is not a duel between two political gladiators, it is the nearest thing to it this country has seen.

Night after night Heath and Wilson stare from television screens, attacking, denouncing, heaping scorn and abuse.

"Almost unbelievable," says Heath of Labor's plans to nationalize offshore oil.

"I am sure the leader of the opposition does not wish to mislead the public deliberately," he says—a polite Heath-style way of saying "Wilson is lying."

Heath never refers to Wilson by name—only as "the leader of the opposition" or "the leader of the Labor party."

"Mr. Heath's election is fraudulent," slams back Wilson.

"Mr. Heath's whole attitude," he says, "is that he has to decide everything, come hell, come high water, come paralysis of industry."

Both Heath and Wilson attend their party's daily campaign news conference.

A government minister or top party aide usually is there too. But, aside from one day when Wilson lost his voice, the conferences are solo performances.

Heath campaigned with meetthe-people handshaking tours at shopping centers and supermarkets—something that clearly does not come easily to him, to judge from his frozen smile.

Wilson, although more at home with this style of campaigning, has concentrated mostly on big set speeches.

Heath has clocked about 2,200 miles campaigning while Wilson already is well over the 3,000-mile mark.

Yet recent opinion polls have indicated between 60-65 per cent of Britons are tired of the Heath-Wilson slamming match and the presidential style contest.

British commentators say the beneficiary of this could well be Jeremy Thorpe, leader of the small, third-ranking Liberal party.

A Sunday Times poll rated him higher than either Heath or Wilson for "likeability" and "leadership qualities."
